RESOLUTION

Affirming the term “woke” and its historical connection to Black history, Black liberation movements, and social justice.

Whereas Black history is a critical aspect of United States history and has shaped United States culture, including the evolution of language;

Whereas the words “wake up” and “woke” have served as a call to action as conveyed by social activist Marcus Garvey who stated, “Wake up Ethiopia! Wake up Africa”, and the Negro Mine Workers who in 1940 issued the statement, “We were asleep. But we will stay woke from now on”, in advocating against discriminatory pay;

Whereas the term “woke” was first highlighted in the 1962 essay, “If You’re Woke, You Dig It”, featured in the New York Times by Harlem-based writer William Melvin Kelley, who documented the cultural appropriation and distortion of language, resulting in certain idioms being abandoned by their original Black creators;

Whereas the term “woke” has been similarly misused, as traditional media have reframed “woke” as trendy new slang, eroding its cultural connection and separating the term from its historical grounding in social justice;

Whereas, six decades later, right-wing extremists have engaged in a similar exercise of cultural appropriation to weaponize and misdefine the term “woke”, as evidenced by the “Stop W.O.K.E. Act”, specifically targeting the teaching of United States history and Black educators; and

Whereas Black educators are more likely to teach subjects that incorporate an inclusive view of history, and legislation like the End Woke Higher Education Act threaten to undermine both diversity, equity, and inclusion programs and nondiscrimination protections: Now, therefore, be it

- 1        Resolved, That the House of Representatives—

  - 5                (2) encourages a historically accurate and correct use of the term “woke” when its misuse is identified; and
