Library of Congress

U.S. Government Printing Office
Washington, DC 2006

Printed on recycled paper

44 U.S.C. §1333

(a) The Librarian of Congress shall prepare compilations of pertinent excerpts, bibliographical references, and other appropriate materials relating to:

- (1) the subject selected annually by the National University Extension Association as the national high school debate topic and
- (2) the subject selected annually by the American Speech Association as the national college debate topic.

In preparing the compilations the Librarian shall include materials which in his judgment are representative of, and give equal emphasis to, the opposing points of view on the respective topics.

(b) The compilations on the high school debate topics shall be printed as Senate documents and the compilations on the college debate topics shall be printed as House of Representative documents, the cost of which shall be charged to the congressional allotment for printing and binding. Additional copies may be printed in the quantities and distributed in the manner the Joint Committee on Printing directs.

Foreword

The 2002-03 high school debate topic is "Resolved: That the United States federal government should substantially increase public health services for mental health." This topic is chosen by the relevant debate associations.

In compliance with 44 U.S.C. §1333, the Congressional Research Service (CRS) of the Library of Congress prepared this bibliography to assist high school debaters in researching the topic. This bibliography is intended to assist debaters in the identification of further references and resources on the topic. In selecting items for this manual, CRS has sampled a wide spectrum of opinions reflected in the current literature on this issue. No preference for any policy is indicated by the selection or positioning of articles cited, nor is CRS disapproval of any policy or article to be inferred from its omission.

Some of the U.S. government documents listed in this bibliography may be found in U.S. government depository libraries, which can be identified by local public or college libraries. The Library of Congress cannot distribute copies of these or other materials to debaters. This manual is also available on the GPO Access Home Page on the World Wide Web at [<http://www.access.gpo.gov>].

The bibliography was prepared by Tara Ranson, Librarian, Office of Information Resources Management, CRS, under the direction of Sherry B. Shapiro, Information Resource Specialist. Production was made possible by Ann Eschete, Information Resources Assistant.

Good luck to each debater in researching, preparing and presenting arguments on this year's topic.

Introduction

The 2002-2003 high school debate topic is: “Resolved: That the United States Federal Government Should Substantially Increase Public Health Services for Mental Health.”

This selective bibliography is intended to help debaters identify resources and references on the debate topic. The bibliography lists citations to books, congressional publications, and magazine and journal articles. The manual is divided into three subtopics: Mental Health Services, Information About Specific Mental Health Disorders, and General Electronic Resources Addressing the Subject of Mental Health. Debaters may look for these and related resources at their local high school, research, government depository, and public libraries.

There are a number of debate websites available for consultation. Examples include:

- National Federation of State High School Associations [<http://www.nfhs.org/NFISDA.htm>];
- University of Kansas Government Documents Library [<http://kuhttp.cc.ukans.edu/cwis/units/kulib/docs/debate2000.html>]; and
- University of Michigan Documents Center [<http://www.lib.umich.edu/libhome/Documents.center/debate00.html>].

The websites listed above contain many links to documents and to websites of organizations active in high school debate. A web search on the topic “high school debate” will yield a wide variety of debate related websites for further research.

Summary

The purpose of this debate manual is to provide students with a brief overview of information concerning the 2002-2003 high school debate topic,

“Resolved: That the United States Federal Government Should Substantially Increase Public Health Services for Mental Health.”

This bibliography includes citations to books, congressional publications, and magazine and journal articles. The compilation is not intended to supply complete coverage of the topic. Further research on public health services for mental health in general, as well as each suggested subtopic, can be done at high school, research, depository, and public libraries.

Databases available through CRS’s Office of Information Resources Management were used to prepare this bibliography.

This literature also suggests that such children could benefit from mental health/social service intervention."

This report presents estimates of the cost to managed care organizations for six different preventative interventions for mental health or substance abuse patients. The six interventions: (1) Prenatal and infancy home visits for high-risk mothers; (2) Smoking cessation targeted at pregnant women; (3) Targeted short-term mental health therapy; (4) Health promotion through self-care education; (5) Presurgical educational intervention with adults; (6) Brief counseling to reduce alcohol use. Relevant Public Laws

The text of all these public laws can be found for free on the Library of Congress' Thomas website. The address is [<http://thomas.loc.gov>].

Scroll down to Legislation on the left side of the screen and click on "Public Laws by Public Law Number." On the next screen, choose the appropriate Congress. The number of the Congress is indicated by the first three digits of the Public Law number (for example, 106 or 107).

Then, for the appropriate Congress, choose the correct sequence. For example, for P.L. 107-83, click on "107-51 – 107-100."

Finally, scroll down to the appropriate law. Public Law numbers are listed at the end of the individual descriptions, in black text. The blue hyperlinks indicate only the numbers of the bills from which the public laws originated.

Often, many separate provisions will be contained in a single bill. To find the sections that are especially interesting to you, it can be helpful to use the "Find" command on your browser to search for phrases such as "mental health," "children's mental health," or "health insurance."

Printed copies of public laws can also be found in a library that carries the U.S. Statutes at Large or the United States Congressional and Administrative News series.

Americans With Disabilities Act. P.L. 101-336

America's Law Enforcement and Mental Health Project. P.L. 106-515

Provided grants for 100 demonstration mental health courts. These courts were designed to provide judicial supervision and case management for convicted mentally ill offenders. Only offenders charged with misdemeanors or non-violent offenses could qualify.

Children's Health Act of 2000. P.L. 106-310

Addressed children's health and youth drug and mental health services.

Mental Health Parity Act of 1996. P.L. 104-204

Expired on September 30, 2001.

Two bills introduced in the 107th Congress, H.R. 4066 and S. 543, address the subject of mental health parity. The bills define mental health parity as “provid[ing] for equal coverage of mental health benefits with respect to health insurance coverage unless comparable limitations are imposed on medical and surgical benefits.”
