PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Introduced on July 20, 2023, by Representative Bill Huizenga, H.R. 4790, the Guiding Uniform and Responsible Disclosure Requirements and Information Limits (GUARDRAIL) Act of 2023, would (1) amend the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, mandating that issuers disclose information to the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) only if the issuer deems it material for voting or investment decisions; (2) amend the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 to require the SEC to maintain a public list of mandates that require the disclosure of non-material information and issue a report every five years justifying these disclosures to Congress. Additionally, it specifies that failing to disclose non-material information under Federal securities laws will not incur private liability in any legal action. Further, H.R. 4790 establishes a Public Company Advisory Committee within the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to provide guidance to the SEC on matters concerning public reporting, corporate governance, proxy process, trading in securities, and capital formation; and directs the SEC to conduct a study on the detrimental impact of the Directive on Corporate Sustainability Due Diligence (CSDD) and the Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (CSRD) on United States companies, consumers, investors, and the U.S. economy.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

H.R. 4790 is a compilation of four previously introduced bills, including:

H.R. 4168, the Mandatory Materiality Requirement Act

H.R. 4628, a bill to amend the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to require the Securities and Exchange Commission to disclose and report on non-material disclosure mandates, and for other purposes

H.R. 4652, the Public Company Advisory Committee Act

H.R. 4653, the Protecting U.S. Business Sovereignty Act

Title I—H.R. 4168, the Mandatory Materiality Requirement Act, was introduced on June 15, 2023, by Representative Bill Huizenga

Title I would reinforce the foundational principles of the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 by mandating that disclosures made by issuers to the SEC must hold material significance concerning voting or investment decisions.

BACKGROUND

The SEC's pursuit of environmental, social and governance (ESG) disclosure initiatives threatens to alter the long-standing materiality standard of the Commission. This standard has been the touchstone of our public company disclosure regime since the concept of materiality was first included in the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934. Under the principles-based materiality standard, a company must disclose information to prospective investors and shareholders so that they can make informed investment and proxy voting decisions.

Currently, public companies are already required to make disclosures concerning ESG information when such information is material. Furthermore, the SEC has previously emphasized that mandatory disclosures relating to environmental and social matters should only be mandated if legally required or if such information is material to investors.

This title reaffirms the concept of materiality and ensures that the SEC can only mandate disclosures for information material to voting or investment decisions.

Title II—H.R. 4628, a bill to amend the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to require the Securities and Exchange Commission to disclose and report on non-material disclosure mandates, and for other purposes, was introduced on July 13, 2023, by Representative Alexander Mooney

Title II would amend the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to require the SEC to disclose and report on non-material disclosure mandates. It would require the SEC to maintain a comprehensive list of these mandates and provide justifications for them at five-year intervals. Moreover, it establishes that any issuer failing to disclose non-material information under Federal securities laws will not be subject to private liability.

BACKGROUND

The Biden Administration's prioritization of non-material environmental, social, and political issues over sound financial regulation has troubling consequences. By prioritizing these issues, they drive up costs and administrative hurdles for companies in the U.S. public markets. This deters potential companies from going public or staying public, hindering their global competitiveness and the attractiveness of U.S. markets. These increased expenses also burden retail investors by increasing costs, which reduces their ability to save for the future.

This title will boost transparency, minimize legal risk, and provide clearer guidelines on the SEC's demands for non-material information. Under this title, the SEC will publicly list all non-material disclosure requirements, along with explanations for their necessity. Furthermore, the SEC will conduct a comprehensive review every five years, reporting to Congress on the justification for each non-material disclosure requirement on the list. Finally, this title safeguards individuals from liability for not disclosing non-material information.

Title III—H.R. 4652, the Public Company Advisory Committee Act, was introduced on July 14, 2023, by Representative Frank Lucas

Title III would amend the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to establish the Public Company Advisory Committee within the SEC.

BACKGROUND

Presently, the SEC has four advisory committees, including the SEC Small Business Advisory Committee, which was established by the SEC Small Business Advocate Act of 2016. The Small Business Advisory Committee serves as a formal conduit for advising the SEC on rules, regulations, and policies impacting small businesses. The SEC lacks an advisory body dedicated to addressing concerns across all public companies.

This title will address the existing void by establishing the Public Company Advisory Committee. This committee will be responsible for advising the SEC on rules and policies pertaining to its mission, which includes safeguarding investors, ensuring fair and efficient markets, and facilitating capital formation, all within the context of public companies. Comprising appointed members from public companies, business associations, and professional advisors, the committee will play a pivotal role in shaping regulatory decisions in alignment with the SEC's core objectives.

Title IV—H.R. 4653, the Protecting U.S. Business Sovereignty Act, was introduced on July 14, 2023, by Representative Daniel Meuser

Title IV would require the SEC to conduct a study on the detrimental impact of the Directive on Corporate Sustainability Due Diligence (CSDD) and the Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (CSRD) on American companies.

BACKGROUND

The CSDD, a European Union (EU) directive, compels certain EU and non-EU companies to identify and mitigate their activities' environmental and human rights impacts. This extends beyond their operations to encompass subsidiaries and entities in their value chains, demanding prevention plans, contractual assurances, and compliance verification. Similarly, the EU's CSRD mandates detailed disclosures from U.S. companies with EU subsidiaries, covering diverse environmental, social, and governance facets, including external business relationships. These reporting requirements, reliant on external information sources often outside of a company's direct control, pose considerable challenges for American companies.

This title mandates a comprehensive study into the potential adverse effects of the CSDD and CSRD on U.S. companies, consumers, investors, and the economy. The study will offer critical insights, empowering policymakers and regulators to make well-informed decisions concerning these EU directives.

COMMITTEE OVERSIGHT FINDINGS

Pursuant to clause 3(c) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the findings and recommendations of the Committee, based on oversight activities under clause 2(b)(1) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, are incorporated in the descriptive portions of this report.

PERFORMANCE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

Pursuant to clause 3(c)(4) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the goal of H.R. 4790 is to refine issuer disclosure requirements, establish a Public Company Advisory Committee, and study the potential adverse effects of EU sustainability directives on U.S. entities and the economy.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE ESTIMATES

The Committee has requested but not received a cost estimate from the Director of the Congressional Budget Office. However, pursuant to clause 3(d)(1) of House rule XIII, the Committee will adopt as its own the cost estimate by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office once it has been prepared.

NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY, ENTITLEMENT AUTHORITY, AND TAX EXPENDITURES

The Committee has requested but not received an estimate from the Director of the Congressional Budget Office. However, pursuant to clause 3(c)(2) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, once an estimate has been prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office, as required by section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1973, the Committee will adopt as its own the estimate of new budget authority, entitlement authority, or tax expenditures or revenues.

FEDERAL MANDATES STATEMENT

The Committee has requested but not received from the Director of the Congressional Budget Office an estimate of the Federal mandates pursuant to section 423 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act. The Committee will adopt the estimate once it has been prepared by the Director.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE STATEMENT

Pursuant to section 5(b) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act, Title III would amend the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to establish the Public Company Advisory Committee within the SEC.

APPLICABILITY TO LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

The Committee finds that the legislation does not relate to the terms and conditions of employment or access to public services or accommodations within the meaning of section 102(b)(3) of the Congressional Accountability Act.

EARMARK IDENTIFICATION

With respect to clause 9 of rule XXI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee has carefully reviewed the provisions of the bill and states that the provisions of the bill do not contain any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits within the meaning of the rule.

DUPLICATION OF FEDERAL PROGRAMS

Pursuant to clause 3(c)(5) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee states that no provision of the bill establishes or reauthorizes a program of the Federal Government known to be duplicative of another Federal program, including any program that was included in a report to Congress pursuant to section 21 of the Public Law 111–139 or the most recent Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE LEGISLATION

Section 1. Short title; table of contents

This section cites H.R. 4790 as the “Guiding Uniform and Responsible Disclosure Requirements and Information Limits Act of 2023” or the “GUARDRAIL Act of 2023.” This section also provides the table of contents for the separate bills that make up H.R. 4790.

Section 101. Mandatory materiality requirement

This section amends the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to mandate that the SEC specify that issuers are only obligated to disclose information that they consider material for making voting or investment decisions about their securities.

Section 201. SEC justification of non-material disclosure mandates

This section requires the SEC to maintain and publicly list disclosure mandates that require non-material information. It forces the SEC to provide explanations for why these mandates are necessary. Additionally, the section mandates the SEC to issue a report every five years justifying each disclosure on this list to Congress. It also shields issuers from private liability for not disclosing information that is deemed non-material under federal securities laws or regulations.

Section 301. Public Company Advisory Committee

This section amends the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to establish the Public Company Advisory Committee within the SEC. The Committee’s purpose is to provide advice to the SEC on regulatory priorities, public reporting, corporate governance, trading securities, and capital formation. Membership comprises individuals from public companies, associations representing these companies, and professional advisors to these entities. The Committee periodically reports to Congress, with members serving staggered four-year terms, and permits the formation of subcommittees. The section requires the SEC to review the Committee’s findings and publicly disclose actions regarding their recommendations.

Section 401. Study on detrimental impact of the directive on Corporate Sustainability Due Diligence and Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive

This section instructs the SEC to conduct a study on the potential negative impacts of two EU directives—specifically, their effects on U.S. companies, consumers, investors, and the national economy. The study also evaluates how these directives align with international human rights and environmental conventions and examines the legal basis for their extraterritorial reach. Within a year, the SEC must submit a report to various committees and government bodies, outlining the study’s findings and providing recommendations to address concerns identified. The SEC can request relevant data from private entities to aid in the study. The directives under scrutiny are the proposed “Corporate Sustainability Due Diligence” directive adopted by the European Commission and the “Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive” effective from January 5, 2023.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW MADE BY THE BILL, AS REPORTED

In compliance with clause 3(e) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, changes in existing law made by the bill, as reported, are shown as follows (existing law proposed to be omitted is enclosed in black brackets, new matter is printed in italics, and existing law in which no change is proposed is shown in roman):

MINORITY VIEWS

This bill is part of the Republican attacks on “woke” policies that actually help everyday investors make informed decisions with their money. In general, this bill restricts the Securities and Exchange Commission’s (SEC) authority to require disclosures and enforce compliance with such requirements, thereby giving public companies the ability to hide risks about themselves that investors would otherwise want to know. The bill is comprised of four titles, each briefly addressed below.

- Title I cripples the ability of the SEC to require material disclosures and instead allows public companies to make their own rules. Under our federal securities laws, public companies are required to disclose financial and other information to investors when it is “material.” The Supreme Court has held that a fact is material if there is: “a substantial likelihood that the . . . fact would have been viewed by the reasonable investor as having significantly altered the ‘total mix’ of information made available.” This Title would overhaul the legal precedent behind the materiality standard and instead state that a public company is only required to disclose information that they determine material.

- Title II fundamentally misunderstands the current securities law framework. Under current securities law, only material information is required to be disclosed. This Title would require the SEC to maintain a list of disclosure mandates of non-material information, which by definition doesn’t exist. The SEC has NO authority to mandate non-material disclosures. The Title would further require the SEC to study and justify any non-material disclosure mandates, which again do not exist, every 5 years and provides that there will be no private liability for failing to comply with non-material disclosure mandates.

- Title III gives large corporations an outsized voice within the SEC, allowing them to improperly influence the oversight and creation of investor-friendly disclosure obligations and shareholder voting rules to the detriment of ordinary shareholders and investors. Specifically, Title III would create a public company advisory committee made up exclusively of industry representatives, who would be entitled to compensation for travel related to their advisory committee responsibilities and access to any SEC staff that they deem necessary to carry out their responsibilities. The SEC would be required under this title to promptly respond to any finding or recommendation of the advisory committee, including what actions the SEC will take in response. No investor perspectives would be included in this advisory committee.

• Title IV requires an inherently biased study on the EU's proposal on corporate sustainability, focusing exclusively on the costs of compliance from an industry perspective and none of the benefits to society. Specifically, Title IV requires the SEC to conduct a study on the “detrimental impact” of implementing the “Corporate Sustainability Due Diligence” adopted by the European Commission on February 23, 2022 (hereinafter “Directive”). This Directive, which does not apply in the U.S., but could impact multinational companies, requires covered companies to identify and mitigate the negative human rights and environmental impacts in the company’s operations. According to Americans for Financial Reform, “[t]his [title] takes aim at the idea that companies should be accountable to social and environmental issues more broadly[; however] [o]pposition to the targeted directives is not in line with what voters want: most voters (76%) feel companies play a vital role in society and should be held accountable to make a positive impact on the communities in which they operate[—] [a] finding [that] is consistent across political lines, with both the majority of Republicans (69%) and Democrats (82%) in agreement—reflecting bipartisan common ground.”¹

Democratic members offered six amendments to this bill, none of which were passed. They are described in further detail below:

1. An amendment offered by Rep. Beatty ensuring that nothing within the act can limit the SEC’s ability to conduct rulemakings pertaining to human capital management and diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) disclosures.

2. An amendment offered by Rep. Meeks putting forth a sense of Congress about the benefits of companies incorporating diversity, equity, and inclusion into their business.

3. An amendment offered by Rep. Vargas ensuring that nothing within the act can limit the SEC’s ability to conduct rulemakings pertaining to standardizing climate related disclosures.

4. An amendment offered by Rep. Casten requiring the SEC to conduct a study on 1) the economic impact on investors if the United States fails to adopt mandatory, comparable, and comprehensive climate disclosure standards and 2) the economic impact on United States companies that operate globally if reporting standards for publicly traded companies with respect to climate impacts are not harmonized.

5. An amendment offered by Rep. Garcia putting forth a sense of Congress that sound research indicates climate change is a real and material risk to American businesses and the global economy.

6. An amendment offered by Rep. Tlaib defining the term “woke” as consisting of (but not limited to) initiatives designed to highlight climate risk, bolster diversity, strengthen corporate accountability, and invest in employee development.
