SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

Restoring endangered or threatened animals and plants to the point where they are again secure, self-sustaining members of their ecosystems is a primary goal of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's (Service) endangered species program. To help guide the recovery effort, the Service is working to prepare recovery plans for most of the listed species native to the United States. Recovery plans describe actions considered necessary for the conservation of the species, establish criteria for reclassification or delisting, and estimate time and cost for implementing the recovery measures needed.

The Endangered Species Act of 1973 (Act), as amended (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.) requires the development of recovery plans for listed species unless such a plan would not promote the conservation of a particular species. Section 4(f) of the Act, as amended in 1988, requires that public notice and an opportunity for public review and comment be provided during recovery plan development. The Service will consider all information presented during a public comment period prior to approval of each new or revised recovery plan. The Service and other Federal agencies will also take these comments into account in the course of implementing approved recovery plans.

Three native, endangered fish species are endemic to the Pahranaagat Valley in Lincoln County, Nevada. The Pahranaagat roundtail chub is found in only 12 km of the Pahranaagat River. The White River springfish is found only in the spring pool of Ash Spring. The Hiko White River springfish is found in the spring pools of Hiko and Crystal Springs. Populations of Pahranaagat roundtail chub vary between 150 to 250 adult fish. The White River springfish population is stable with approximately 7000 fish. The Hiko White River springfish population is critically low (<35) in Crystal Spring and more common (approximately 5500 fish) in Hiko Spring. The principle causes of decline for these species are habitat modification and nonnative fish introductions. Critical habitat has been designated for the two subspecies of springfish. Ninety-five percent of the habitats occupied by these species are on private lands. Recovery of this species will require removal and/or control of nonnative fishes, restoration and protection of occupied habitats, and protection of ground water sources.

Public Comments Solicited

The Service solicits written comments on the recovery plan described. All comments received by the date specified will be considered prior to approval of the plan.

Authority

The authority for this action is section 4(f) of the Endangered Species Act, 16 U.S.C. 1533(f).

Dated: September 1, 1995.

Michael J. Spear,
Regional Director.
