

joint rule and the travel rule to transmittals of funds involving foreign financial institutions, Treasury and the Board have amended the joint rule to conform certain of the definitions of the parties to transmittals of funds to definitions found in Article 4A of the Uniform Commercial Code. Treasury has also amended the travel rule: To clarify that the exceptions applicable for the joint rule are also applicable for the travel rule; and to accommodate a compliance concern raised by the banking industry after the close of the comment period. To ensure that there is an adequate implementation period following final action on the proposed amendments, which are published elsewhere in today's Federal Register, the Treasury has delayed the effective date of the final travel rule until May 28, 1996.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Effective April 1, 1996, the effective date of the final rule published on January 3, 1995, at 60 FR 234, is further delayed until May 28, 1996.

RIN 1506-AA16

Amendment to the Bank Secrecy Act Regulations Relating to Recordkeeping for Funds Transfers and Transmittals of Funds by Banks and Other Financial Institutions

AGENCY: Department of the Treasury; Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

ACTION: Joint final rule.

SUMMARY: The Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) of the Department of the Treasury (Treasury) and the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (Board) jointly have adopted amendments to their final rule that requires enhanced recordkeeping related to certain funds transfers and transmittals of funds by financial institutions (the joint rule). These amendments revise the joint rule's definitions and make technical conforming changes to the substantive provisions of the joint rule to conform the definitions of the parties to an international transfer to their meanings under Article 4A of the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC 4A). The revised definitions will also affect the provisions of a Treasury companion rule, adopted in January 1995, known as the travel rule, which requires financial institutions to include in transmittal orders certain information that must be maintained under the joint rule. Treasury is also publishing amendments to its travel rule. See companion final rule amending the travel rule published elsewhere in today's issue of the Federal Register. The amendments are intended to reduce confusion of banks and nonbank financial institutions as to the applicability of the joint rule and the travel rule and to reduce the cost of complying with the rules' requirements. The Treasury and the Board believe that the amendments will not have a material adverse effect on the rules' usefulness in law enforcement investigations and proceedings. The amendments should not affect a bank's responsibilities under the rules with respect to domestic funds transfers. Furthermore, to ensure that there is an adequate implementation period following final action on the proposed amendments, the Treasury and the Board have delayed the effective date of the joint final rule until May 28, 1996. See the final rule; delay of effective date published elsewhere in today's issue of the Federal Register.

EFFECTIVE DATE: May 28, 1996.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

The statute generally referred to as the Bank Secrecy Act (BSA) (Pub. L. 91-508, codified at 12 U.S.C. 1829b and 1951-1959, and 31 U.S.C. 5311-5330) authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to require financial institutions to keep records and file reports that the Secretary determines have a high degree of usefulness in criminal, tax, or regulatory investigations or proceedings. The authority of the Secretary to administer the BSA has been delegated to the Director of FinCEN. The BSA was amended by the Annunzio-Wylie Anti-Money Laundering Act of 1992 (Pub. L. 102-550), which authorizes the Treasury and the Board to prescribe regulations to require maintenance of records regarding domestic and international funds transfers. The Treasury and the Board are required to promulgate jointly, after consultation with state banking supervisors, recordkeeping requirements for international funds transfers by depository institutions and nonbank financial institutions. The Treasury and the Board are required to consider the usefulness of recordkeeping rules for international funds transfers in criminal, tax, or regulatory investigations or proceedings and the effect of such rules on the cost and efficiency of the payments system. The Treasury and the Board are authorized to promulgate regulations for domestic funds transfers by depository institutions. The Treasury, but not the Board, is authorized to promulgate recordkeeping and reporting requirements for domestic funds transfers by nonbank financial institutions.

In January 1995, the Treasury and the Board jointly published enhanced recordkeeping requirements related to certain funds transfers and transmittals of funds by banks and other financial institutions, in accordance with the BSA (60 FR 220, January 3, 1995). At the same time, the Treasury adopted a companion rule, known as the travel rule, which requires financial institutions to include in transmittal orders certain information that must be retained under the joint rule (60 FR 234, January 3, 1995). The joint rule sets forth definitions of terms used in both rules.

Subsequent to adoption of the joint rule, several large banks as well as bank counsel advised the Treasury and the Board that compliance with the joint rule and the travel rule would be complicated if the parties to an international funds transfer were defined differently in the joint rule than they are in the Uniform Commercial Code Article 4A (UCC 4A). Under the joint rule adopted in January, the first U.S. bank office that handles an incoming international funds transfer was defined as the originator's bank.¹ Under UCC 4A and the Board's Regulation J governing Fedwire transfers (12 CFR Part 210, subpart B), which incorporates UCC 4A, if the U.S. bank receives a payment order from a foreign bank and executes a corresponding payment order to a subsequent receiving bank, the first U.S. bank would be deemed an intermediary bank rather than the originator's bank. Large banks that regularly process international funds transfers believe that substantial confusion would result from defining the parties to an international funds transfer for the purposes of the BSA rules differently from the manner in which they are defined under UCC 4A. In addition, several banks indicated that they believe the difference between the BSA and the UCC 4A definitions may cause certain problems in the application of the joint rule and the travel rule to international funds transfers.

In August 1995, the Treasury and the Board proposed amendments to the joint rule to address industry concerns regarding the confusion created by defining the parties to an international funds transfer in a manner that is not consistent with the roles of the parties as defined by UCC 4A (60 FR 44146, August 24, 1995). In their notice of the proposed amendments, the Treasury and the Board included a detailed illustration of the operational issues raised by industry representatives.

Under the proposed amendments, the definition of the first U.S. bank office that handles an incoming international funds transfer would be changed from an originator's bank to an intermediary bank. Corresponding changes were proposed to address the same issues with respect to nonbank financial institutions that conduct international transmittals of funds. In addition, the Treasury and the Board proposed amending section 103.33(e)(6) by deleting the word "domestic" prior to the word "bank" and prior to the words "broker or dealer in securities." These changes have no material effect on the scope of the exclusions set forth in this section as the word "bank" is defined to be limited to offices located within the United States and the term "broker or dealer in securities" is limited to brokers registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Also in August 1995, Treasury and the Board deferred the effective date of the joint rule until April 1, 1996 from January 1, 1996, to provide financial institutions sufficient time to prepare to comply with their responsibilities under the joint final rule with respect to international transfers pending final action on the proposed amendments to the joint rule (60 FR 44144, August 24, 1995). To ensure that there is an adequate implementation period following final action on the proposed amendments, the Treasury and the Board have delayed further the effective date of the joint final rule until May 28, 1996. See the final rule; delay of effective date published elsewhere in today's issue of the Federal Register.

II. Summary of Public Comments

The Treasury and the Board received eleven comments on the proposed amendments. The following table identifies the number of commenters by type of organization:

Commercial Banks	4
Federal Reserve Banks	3
Savings Institutions	1
Trade Association	1
Credit Union Association	1
Clearing House Association	1
Total Public Comments	11

Ten comment letters supported the proposed amendments to the joint rule. Commenters agreed that amending the definitions of the parties to an international transfer in the joint rule will reduce confusion with respect to the interpretation of the rules and will facilitate compliance with the rules' requirements.

One commenter requested that the Treasury and the Board define how intermediary banks might be expected to retrieve records. All banks are subject to the general retrievability requirements under section 103.38(d). Under this standard, the expected timeliness of retrievability will vary by request. Generally, records should be accessible within a reasonable period of time, considering the quantity of records requested, the nature and age of the record, the amount and type of information provided by the law enforcement agency making the request, as well as the particular bank's volume and capacity to retrieve the records. Intermediary banks are obligated to comply with any properly executed subpoena or search warrant. No changes have been made to the final rule with respect to the retrievability requirements.

Another commenter requested that the Treasury and the Board clarify the applicability of the joint rule in cases in which an originator's bank accomplishes a transfer by issuing a check payable to another bank. The Treasury and the Board plan to address this and other issues in a commentary that will be published to address various aspects of the joint rule.

One bank commented that the applicability of the BSA regulations to small banks would not serve a high degree of usefulness in criminal, tax or regulatory investigations or proceedings. The Treasury and the Board believe that exempting small institutions would facilitate money laundering through those institutions.

III. Conclusion

Based on the responses received by the commenters, the Treasury and the Board have adopted the amendments to the joint rule as proposed. The Treasury and the Board do not believe that these amendments will increase the cost of compliance with the rules' requirements for those banks and nonbank financial institutions that have prepared to comply with the rules under the assumption that the first U.S. banking office in an international transfer is subject to the originator's bank responsibilities. Further, the Treasury and the Board do not believe that identifying the banks in an international transfer in the same manner as they are defined in UCC 4A will reduce the usefulness of the information to law enforcement, provided that intermediary banks comply with the requirements of 103.38(d). As part of the 36-month review of the effectiveness of the joint rule and the travel rule, Treasury will monitor the experience of law enforcement in obtaining from intermediary banks information retained pursuant to the joint rule.

IV. Paperwork Reduction Act

The collection of information required by the joint final rule, which is being amended in this notice, was submitted by the Treasury to the Office of Management and Budget in accordance with the requirements of the Paperwork Reduction Act (44 U.S.C. 3504(h)) under control number 1505-0063. (60 FR 227, January 3, 1995) The collection is authorized, as before, by 12 U.S.C. 1829b and 1959 and 31 U.S.C. 5311-5330.

The changes to the joint final rule in this document will eliminate information collection requirements that were required by the joint final rule. Therefore, no additional Paperwork Reduction Act submissions are required.

V. Regulatory Flexibility Act

Pursuant to section 605(b) of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 605(b)), the Treasury and the Board hereby certify that these amendments to the joint final rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. The amendments eliminate uncertainty as to the application of the joint final rule and reduce the cost of complying with the joint rule's requirements. Further, the amendments affect international funds transfers and transmittals of funds, which are handled almost exclusively by large institutions. Accordingly, a regulatory flexibility analysis is not required.

VI. Executive Order 12866

The Treasury finds that these amendments to the joint rule are not "significant" for purposes of Executive Order 12866. The modifications should reduce the cost of compliance with the joint rule and the travel rule. The Treasury believes that these rule changes will not affect adversely in a material way the economy, a sector of the economy, productivity, competition, jobs, the environment, public health or safety, or state, local, or tribal governments or communities. These revisions create no inconsistencies with, nor do they interfere with actions taken or planned by other agencies. Finally, these revisions raise no novel legal or policy issues. A cost and benefit analysis therefore is not required.

VII. Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 Statement

Section 202 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995, Pub. L. 104-4 (Unfunded Mandates Act), signed into law on March 22, 1995, requires that an agency prepare a budgetary impact statement before promulgating a rule that includes a federal mandate that may result in expenditure by state, local, and tribal governments, in the aggregate, or by the private sector, of $100 million or more in any one year. The Treasury has determined that it is not required to prepare a written budgetary impact statement for the amendments, and has concluded that the amendments are the most cost-effective and least burdensome means of achieving the stated objectives of the rule.

RIN 1506-AA17

Amendment to the Bank Secrecy Act Regulations Relating to Orders for Transmittals of Funds by Financial Institutions

AGENCY: Financial Crimes Enforcement Network, Treasury.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: On January 3, 1995, the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) of the Department of the Treasury (Treasury) and the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (the Board) jointly adopted a final rule (the joint rule) requiring financial institutions to collect and retain certain information pertaining to transmittals of funds, and Treasury adopted a final rule (the travel rule) requiring financial institutions to include in transmittal orders certain information collected under the joint rule. In response to industry concerns about the application of the joint rule and the travel rule to transmittals of funds involving foreign financial institutions, Treasury and the Board have amended the joint rule to conform certain of the definitions of the parties to transmittals of funds to definitions found in Article 4A of the Uniform Commercial Code (see document published elsewhere in today's Federal Register). This final rule amends the travel rule to reflect the amended definitions in the joint rule, and amends the travel rule to clarify that the exceptions applicable for the joint rule are also applicable for the travel rule.

There is one further change to the travel rule that was not a part of the original proposed rule, new paragraph (g)(3). This change responds to a significant compliance issue that the banking industry did not identify until after the comment period: until all banks convert to the expanded Fedwire format, there will not always be enough space to include in a transmittal order all of the information required by the rule.

Finally, because solving these problems has taken longer than anticipated, this final travel rule, like the final joint rule, will be effective not on April 1, 1996, as originally planned, but on May 28, 1996.

EFFECTIVE DATE: May 28, 1996.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

The statute generally referred to as the Bank Secrecy Act (BSA) (Title I and Title II of Pub. L. 91-508, codified at 12 U.S.C. 1829b and 1951-1959, and 31 U.S.C. 5311-5330), authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury (the Secretary) to require financial institutions to keep records and file reports that the Secretary determines have a high degree of usefulness in criminal, tax, or regulatory investigations or proceedings, and to implement anti-money laundering programs and compliance procedures. The Secretary's authority to administer the BSA has been delegated to the Director of the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN). Section 1515 of the Annunzio-Wylie Anti-Money Laundering Act of 1992 (Title XV of Pub. L. 102-550 (Annunzio-Wylie)), codified at 12 U.S.C. 1829b(b), amended the BSA (1) to require the Secretary and the Board jointly to promulgate recordkeeping requirements for international funds transfers by depository institutions and nonbank financial institutions; and (2) to authorize the Secretary and the Board jointly to promulgate regulations for domestic funds transfers by depository institutions. Section 1517(a) of
