

obtain an ICM proxy interview from the current residents or another reliable proxy. We will attempt to obtain the current address and/or telephone number of the census day residents. We will interview the "outmovers" at their current address in person or by telephone using the ICM Outmover Tracing Questionnaire, Form DT-1340. For outmover households where we successfully trace and interview a member of the Census day household, the information obtained in this interview will be used instead of the information obtained from the proxy. For households where we are unable to locate the Census day residents or obtain an interview from them, we will use the information from the proxy interview.

The ICM Outmover Tracing Questionnaire will also be used in the Outmover Evaluation. The evaluation will measure how effectively the ICM Person Interview identified outmovers.

After the person interview and subsequent matching operation, person matching for Dual System Estimation (DSE) will be conducted. For DSE, results of the ICM Person Interview are combined with the census results to produce a measure of the true population. The estimation technique is called DSE because two independent sources of information or systems are used. Follow-up interviews using Form DT-1301 are needed when prior information is insufficient to determine a person's residence status or match status. After the DSE Follow-up Interview, the results will be coded. The files will then be prepared for missing data and estimation activities.

We will also obtain administrative records of all persons living in dormitories in the urban portion of the 1996 Community Census and match the administrative records to the census. Cases that are possibly matched or nonmatched will be sent to the field for resolution. The DSE Follow-up form, DT-1301A, used during this field resolution will contain only one or two questions to ask of these people. The purpose of the questions is to determine residency status of the people living in dormitories. We will analyze the results of this operation to determine if in Census 2000, we can use administrative records in place of enumeration during the ICM.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Abstract

The Census Bureau is the preeminent collector of timely, relevant and quality data about the people and economy of the United States. Economic data are the Census Bureau's primary program commitment during non-decennial census years. The economic census, conducted under authority of Title 13 U.S.C., is the primary source of facts about the structure and functioning of the Nation's economy and features unique industry and geographic detail. Economic census statistics serve as part of the framework for the national accounts and provide essential information for government, business and the general public.

The 1997 Economic Census will cover virtually every sector of the U.S. economy. The 1987 Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) system is being replaced by the new 1997 North American Industry Classification System (NAICS). The Census Bureau is implementing the new NAICS for the 1997 Economic Censuses. The change to NAICS will require contacting businesses of selected sectors to collect classification information to update the 1997 Economic Censuses mailing lists. The non-goods producing sector which include retail trade, wholesale trade, business services, transportation and other service related industries are the primary areas of the economy where the Census Bureau plans to collect the new NAICS information.

The classification information collected from businesses will be used to update the Census Bureau's mailing lists to ensure respondents will receive the correct 1997 Economic Census form. The collection of this new NAICS information will greatly reduce processing costs and ease reporting burden for the 1997 Economic Censuses data collection. The Census Bureau is not requesting any economic data in this collection.

II. Method of Collection

The Census Bureau will select establishments to receive this survey from the Census Bureau's Standard Statistical Establishment List. Short form questionnaires are designed for respondents to select the industry activity that best describes the establishment's business. The Census Bureau's mail list will include single business establishments and companies with multiple establishments. To be eligible for selection, an establishment must satisfy the following conditions: (1) the current SIC is affected by the NAICS implementation or the current SIC is only coded to the 2 or 3 digit level; and (2) the establishment is above the mail cutoffs planned for the 1997 Economic Census.
