AGENCY: Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

ACTION: Notice; Acceptance of public submissions.

SUMMARY: The Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (“Dodd-Frank Act”) was enacted on July 21, 2010. The Dodd-Frank Act, among other things, will bring comprehensive regulation to the over-the-counter (“OTC”) derivatives marketplace for the first time. The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (“CFTC” or “Commission”) will be implementing the Dodd-Frank Act by adopting rules to regulate the OTC derivatives market. The Commission welcomes the views of interested parties on the Dodd-Frank Act and the rulemakings that it will implement thereunder. The views of interested parties may be considered in the pre-proposal process but will not be treated as official comments on specific proposed rulemakings. As discussed in this notice, the Commission has made electronic mailboxes available for any submissions interested parties wish to make. Interested parties are advised that all submissions will be published on the Commission’s Web site without review and without removal of the submitter’s identifying information.

Thereafter, the Commission will accept official comments on the proposed rulemaking until the close of the rulemaking’s official comment period.

ADDRESSES: Submissions should be made to David Stawick, Secretary, Commodity Futures Trading Commission, by electronic mail to the electronic mailboxes specified herein. SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

On July 21, 2010, The Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (“Dodd-Frank Act”), Public Law 111-203, was enacted. The Dodd-Frank Act will bring comprehensive regulation to the OTC market. The Dodd-Frank Act authorizes the Commission to, among other things:

- Regulate OTC derivatives dealers by subjecting them to capital and margin requirements to lower risk in the financial system, by requiring them to meet robust business conduct standards to lower risk and promote market integrity, and by requiring them to meet recordkeeping and reporting requirements so that regulators can police the markets.
- Increase transparency in the derivatives marketplace by requiring standardized derivatives to be traded on regulated exchanges or swap execution facilities, instead of trading out of sight of the public.

- Lower risk by moving standardized derivatives into central clearinghouses.

The Commission has identified 30 areas in the Dodd-Frank Act in which rulemaking will be necessary and has received inquiries from interested persons wishing to submit their views on those areas. The Commission welcomes the views of all interested parties.

The Commission has established electronic mailboxes for 29 of the 30 rulemaking areas to facilitate the acceptance of submissions from interested parties. In addition, the Commission has established a mailbox for general comments on the Commission’s rulemakings under the Dodd-Frank Act that either do not fit into one of the issue areas or that cover more than one area. The Commission is no longer accepting public submissions in the Retail Off-Exchange Foreign Currency area because the official public comment period for that proposed rulemaking closed on March 22, 2010. Prior to the publication of proposed rulemakings and commencement of official comment periods on regulations proposed under the Dodd-Frank Act, persons interested in making their views known on a particular rulemaking area may submit them by electronic mail to the mailbox associated with the area. The 30 rulemaking areas identified by the Commission are available on the Commission’s Web site at http://www.cftc.gov/LawRegulation/OTCderivatives/otc_rules.html. The electronic mail addresses for each rulemaking area are available by clicking on the hyperlink available for each area and additionally are provided herein:
