[Docket No. 2021-5]

Publishers' Protections Study: Notice and Request for Public Comment

AGENCY: U.S. Copyright Office, Library of Congress.

ACTION: Notice of inquiry.

SUMMARY: The United States Copyright Office is undertaking a public study at the request of Congress to evaluate current copyright protections for publishers. Among other issues, the Office will consider the effectiveness of publishers' existing rights in news content, including under the provisions of title 17 of the U.S. Code, as well as other federal and state laws; whether additional protections are desirable or appropriate; the possible scope of any such new protections, including how their beneficiaries could be defined; and how any such protections would interact with existing rights, exceptions and limitations, and international treaty obligations. To aid in this effort, the Office is seeking public input on a number of questions. The Office also plans to hold a virtual public roundtable to discuss these and related topics on December 9, 2021.

DATES: Comments are due on or before November 26, 2021.

I. Introduction

A. The Internet, Press Publishers, and News Aggregators

The internet has ushered in an era of disruption and transformation for the press-publishing ecosystem. After rising steadily between 1970 and 2006,¹ newspaper ad revenues plummeted

¹ See Michael Barthel & Kirsten Worden, Newspapers Fact Sheet, Pew Research Center (June 29, 2021), <https://www.journalism.org/fact-sheet/newspapers/>. Newspaper ad revenue peaked in the early internet era of the late 1990s and, after a brief dip in 2000-01, peaked again in 2005 following a wave of consolidation in the newspaper industry (including a steady decline in the number of cities with competing daily newspapers). Id.; see also *Media Concentration (Part 2): Hearings Before the Subcomm. on Gen.
