SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

Pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. 552a, the CIS Ombudsman is giving notice that it proposes to update, rename, and reissue the current system of records titled, "DHS/CISOMB-001 Virtual Ombudsman System" as the "DHS/CISOMB-001 Case Assistance Analytic Data Integration (CAADI) System of Records.” This system of records will ensure the efficient and secure processing of information to aid the CIS Ombudsman in providing assistance to individuals and employers and their representatives in resolving problems with USCIS; identifying areas in which individuals, employers, and their representatives have problems in dealing with USCIS; and to the extent possible, proposing administrative changes to mitigate those problems.

This SORN is being updated to: (1) Provide notice that applicants are allowed to submit the DHS Case Assistance Form 7001 online via the website, <https://www.dhs.gov/topic/cis-ombudsman/forms/7001>; (2) provide more specificity on the Categories of Records collected; (3) clarify the record source categories, to include information received from other agencies during processing; (4) modify Routine Use “E” and add Routine Use “F” to conform to OMB Memorandum M–17–12; and (5) update the retention schedule.

CAADI is used to efficiently manage the workflow of the submitted requests for case assistance. Individuals/employers (or their legal/accredited representatives) seeking case assistance from the CIS Ombudsman submit their request using the Form DHS–7001, Case Assistance Form, which can be completed and submitted electronically on the CIS Ombudsman website. Individuals/employers are also able to attach and submit supporting documentation related to their request, such as paperwork previously submitted to USCIS. Cases within CAADI have a corresponding field for each section of Form DHS–7001, so that each piece of information entered by the individual/employer appears in the CAADI record.

CAADI assists the CIS Ombudsman in accomplishing its statutory mandate in a more efficient and effective manner and reduces the amount of time dedicated to data entry and collection by affording an individual or employer with the option to submit their information electronically. CIS Ombudsman also uses the data from this system of records to generate reports and statistics to assist with identifying systemic challenges and trends, as well as proposing changes to mitigate those issues.

CIS Ombudsman personnel, when appropriate, may send inquiries to USCIS and other DHS Components, as well as the U.S. Departments of State, Labor, and Justice, to resolve case issues or to obtain case status. The CIS Ombudsman may provide those departments with information such as receipt numbers and beneficiary or petitioners’ names to obtain status updates in order to assist individuals and employers. This type of information is generally stored in those agencies’ files, records, and databases.

II. Privacy Act

The Privacy Act embeds Fair Information Practice Principles in a statutory framework governing the means by which Federal Government agencies collect, maintain, use, secure, and disseminate individuals’ records. The Privacy Act applies to information that is maintained in a “system of records,” a group of any records under the control of an agency from which information is retrieved by the name of an individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifier assigned to the individual. In the Privacy Act, an individual is defined to encompass U.S. citizens and lawful permanent residents. Additionally, and similarly, the Judicial Redress Act (JRA) provides covered persons with a statutory right to make requests for access and amendment to covered records, as defined by the JRA, along with judicial review for denials of such requests. In addition, the JRA prohibits disclosures of covered records, except as otherwise permitted by the Privacy Act.

The CIS Ombudsman's retrieves records by Case Number, A-Number, or the individual's name.

POLICIES AND PRACTICES FOR RETENTION AND DISPOSAL OF RECORDS:

In accordance with NARA's approved retention and disposal schedule DAA-0563-2019-0004-0001, the processed case files are resolved at the final disposition of the case and are deleted or destroyed three years after resolution. Incomplete case files are the record copy of cases where additional information is requested, but not received. The CIS Ombudsman's procedure is to close such cases seven days after the request for additional information, if such information is not received. These records are also deleted or destroyed three years after resolution.

ADMINISTRATIVE, TECHNICAL, AND PHYSICAL SAFEGUARDS:

The CIS Ombudsman safeguards records in this system according to applicable rules and policies, including all applicable DHS automated systems security and access policies. The CIS Ombudsman has imposed strict controls to minimize the risk of compromising the information that is stored. Access to the computer system containing the records in this system is limited to those individuals who have a need to know the information for the performance of their official duties, and who have appropriate clearances or permissions.

RECORD ACCESS PROCEDURES:

Individuals seeking access to and notification of any record contained in this system of records, or seeking to contest its content, may submit a request in writing to the DHS Chief Privacy Officer and Chief Freedom of Information Act Officer, whose contact information can be found on page two of this document. If an individual believes more than one DHS Component maintains Privacy Act records concerning him or her, the individual may submit the request to the DHS Chief Privacy Officer and Chief Freedom of Information Act Officer. Even if neither the Privacy Act nor the JRA provide a right of access, certain records about you may be available under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA).

When an individual is seeking records about himself or herself from this system of records or any other Departmental system of records, the individual's request must conform with the Privacy Act regulations set forth in 6 CFR part 5. The individual must first verify his/her identity, meaning that the individual must provide his/her full name, current address, and date and place of birth. The individual must sign the request, and the individual's signature must either be notarized or submitted under 28 U.S.C. 1746, a law that permits statements to be made under penalty of perjury as a substitute for notarization. In addition, the individual should:

- Explain why he or she believes the Department would have the information being requested;
- Identify which DHS Component may have the information;
- Specify when the individual believes the records would have been created; and

- Provide any other information that will help the FOIA staff determine which DHS component agency may have responsive records.

If the request is seeking records pertaining to another living individual, the request must include an authorization from the individual whose record is being requested, authorizing the release to the requester.

Without the information above, the DHS Component(s) may not be able to conduct an effective search, and the individual's request may be denied due to lack of specificity or lack of compliance with applicable regulations.

CONTESTING RECORD PROCEDURES:

For records covered by the Privacy Act or covered JRA records, individuals may make a request for amendment or correction of a record of the Department about the individual by writing directly to the DHS Component that maintains the record, unless the record is not subject to amendment or correction. The request should identify each particular record in question, state the amendment or correction desired, and state why the individual believes that the record is not accurate, relevant, timely, or complete. The individual may submit any documentation that would be helpful. If the individual believes that the same record is in more than one system of records, the request should state that and be addressed to each component that maintains a system of records containing the record. The CIS Ombudsman may amend requestor-specific information upon notification from that individual. Additionally, the CIS Ombudsman may verify information submitted by the requestor against other agency databases; amendments may also be made as a result. Amendments may be made in case notes or by overwriting inaccurate information. Requestors are notified of material changes.

NOTIFICATION PROCEDURES:

See "Record Access Procedures" above.

EXEMPTIONS PROMULGATED FOR THE SYSTEM:

When this system receives a record from another system exempted in that source system under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), DHS will claim the same exemptions for those records that are claimed for the original primary systems of records from which they originated.
