

Properties” (36 CFR part 800) and as part of its broad environmental review process, RUS must take into account the effect of the Project on historic properties. The National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA), Section 106 review is integrated with the NEPA review of cultural and historic resources in the FEIS in accordance with the guiding regulations of each law (40 CFR 1500–1508; 36 CFR 800.8). Thirty-nine tribes were invited to participate in the NHPA, Section 106 review process, attend the public scoping and Draft EIS meetings, and provide relevant information for inclusion in the EIS. Cultural and historic resources surveys within the area of potential effect identified one newly recorded historical archaeological site and 20 aboveground historical resources.

The structure associated with the archaeological site is no longer extant and extensive disturbances from agricultural practices have impacted the vertical and horizontal integrity of the site. The site had no discernable features or diagnostic material that contribute to the research potential of the site. Therefore, RUS determined that the archaeological site is not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP). Based on the photographic documentation and available research, one aboveground historic resource is eligible for the NRHP under Criterion C. However, due to the location of aboveground historic resource relative to the Project location (roughly 1 mile east), and the proposed maximum Project height, the Project will not be visible, and RUS determined that the Project would have no adverse effect. The potential still exists that post-review discoveries of archaeological resources could be identified during Project construction, and these would be addressed by RUS in accordance with the NHPA Section 106 regulations for post-review discoveries (36 CFR 800.13).

All substantive public comments associated with the FEIS have been taken into consideration and addressed in the ROD. Based on consideration of the environmental impacts of the Project and comments received throughout the agency and public review process, RUS has determined that the Proposed Action as described above best meets the purpose and need for the Project. RUS finds that the evaluation of reasonable alternatives is consistent with NEPA and RUS Environmental Policies and Procedures. Details regarding RUS regulatory decision and compliance with applicable regulations are included in the ROD.
