According to Mercedes-Benz, the incorrect tire size designation on the vehicle placard “would have no effect on vehicle safety or operation.” In the event that a consumer purchased a spare tire with the tire size indicated on the vehicle placard, Mercedes-Benz says that the “tire would meet all loading and performance requirements for a temporary use spare tire.” Mercedes-Benz claims that “the tire specified on the incorrect placard could be substituted for the original spare tire without any adverse safety consequences.” Mercedes-Benz explains that the misprinted tire size and the spare tire equipped with the subject vehicles “both would enable the vehicles to be operated within specified performance and loading limits.” Specifically, Mercedes-Benz says that “either spare tire is rated to carry loads greater than 1,599 lbs. (for each tire) necessary to prevent overloading” of the subject vehicles and the recommended inflation pressure is the same for both tires, “so there is no risk that the placard would cause a customer to under- or over-inflate either tire.”

Mercedes-Benz claims that the noncompliance is inconsequential to motor vehicle safety because the spare tire would only be used “for a short period of time” and only until the series tire can be replaced, after which the spare tire would be put back in the vehicle for future use. Mercedes-Benz adds that the owner’s manual includes warnings that “clearly advise the vehicle owner that a spare tire should only be used for a very short time and at speeds of less than 50 mph.”

Furthermore, Mercedes-Benz says replacing the spare tire based on the incorrect size would require the spare tire and rim to be replaced while “ignoring the correct size plainly displayed on the very tire being replaced.”

Although the tire information placard was misprinted, Mercedes-Benz says the subject vehicles are equipped with the correct size spare tire, and the spare tire is labeled with the correct tire size. Mercedes-Benz states that if a consumer used the misprinted tire information to replace the original spare tire, “the tire would not fit the original rim,” therefore, Mercedes-Benz believes the correct tire size of the original spare would be immediately identified.

Mercedes-Benz believes NHTSA’s prior decisions on inconsequentiality petitions support the granting of the subject petition. Mercedes-Benz refers to the following decisions of inconsequential noncompliance:

- Chrysler Group, LLC, Grant of Petition for Decision of Inconsequential Noncompliance, 78 FR 38443 (June 26, 2013),
- BMW of North America, LLC, Grant of Petition for Decision of Inconsequential Noncompliance, 84 FR 26505 (June 6, 2019)
- General Motors, LLC Grant of Petition for Decision of Inconsequential Noncompliance, 84 FR 25117 (May 30, 2019)
- BMW of North America, LLC, Grant of Petition for Decision of Inconsequential Noncompliance, 81 FR 62970 (September 13, 2016)
- BMW of North America, LLC, Grant of Petition for Decision of Inconsequential Noncompliance, 78 FR 76408 (December 17, 2013)

Mercedes-Benz concludes by stating its belief that the subject noncompliance is inconsequential as it relates to motor vehicle safety and its petition to be exempted from providing notification of the noncompliance, as required by 49 U.S.C. 30118, and a remedy for the noncompliance, as required by 49 U.S.C. 30120, should be granted.

NHTSA notes that the statutory provisions (49 U.S.C. 30118(d) and 30120(h)) that permit manufacturers to file petitions for a determination of inconsequentiality allow NHTSA to exempt manufacturers only from the duties found in sections 30118 and 30120, respectively, to notify owners, purchasers, and dealers of a defect or noncompliance and to remedy the defect or noncompliance. Therefore, any decision on this petition only applies to the subject vehicles that Mercedes-Benz no longer controlled at the time it determined that the noncompliance existed. However, any decision on this petition does not relieve vehicle distributors and dealers of the prohibitions on the sale, offer for sale, or introduction or delivery for introduction into interstate commerce of the noncompliant vehicles under their control after Mercedes-Benz notified them that the subject noncompliance existed.
