Description

Human remains representing, at minimum, one individual were removed from a location near Oceanside, located on the north side of the Loma Alta Valley, in San Diego County, CA. This location is identified as Hubbs site number "1963:III:31(A)." In 1963, Dr. Carl Leavitt Hubbs, an employee of the University of California, San Diego/Scripps Institution of Oceanography, removed the human remains and associated funerary objects from the site and incorporated them into what became known as the "Hubbs Collection." The eight associated funerary objects are one lot of charcoal, one lot of chipped stone cores, one lot of chipped stone scrapers, one lot of river rock, one lot of organic residue, one lot of unmodified shell, one lot of unworked flakes, and one lot of utilized flakes.

Dr. Hubbs bequeathed the Hubbs Collection to the Museum of Us (formerly the San Diego Museum of Man) in 1973. In March of 2004, the Museum of Us (MoU) deaccessioned the Hubbs Collection and donated it to the University of San Diego (USD) Anthropology Department, although some of the collection remained at MoU. In June of 2020, the University of California, San Diego (UCSD) became aware of the Hubbs Collection and, in December of 2020, given the scope of the collection and complexities related to provenance, UCSD, MoU, and USD reached an agreement to work together to facilitate NAGPRA compliance.
