

announce our decision regarding the request in a subsequent notice.

In accordance with this process, the 20 countries referenced above submitted a request to remove Chrysanthemum spp. and synonymous genera cuttings and in vitro plantlets from NAPPRO, and we prepared a pest list regarding the quarantine pests that could follow the pathway on the importation of these commodities into the continental United States. Likewise, the national plant protection organization of Canada made a similar request with regard to the importation of cuttings, in vitro plantlets, and plants with roots of these genera, and again, we prepared a pest list regarding such importation. However, because CWR was among the quarantine pests on these pest lists, based on longstanding APHIS policy, we were not able to take further action at the time.

This notice announces that we have reevaluated that policy. Since CWR was first discovered in the United States in 1977, detections that reappeared several times were believed eradicated. This belief, along with our assumption that the economic consequences of CWR establishment outweighed the costs of control, undergirded our determination that CWR was of quarantine significance.

Evolving biological research has indicated, however, that CWR can be systemic and survive in below-ground parts. Accordingly, APHIS has undertaken an economic evaluation (EE) that analyzes CWR's regulatory status in light of this evolving biological research. The EE concludes that the U.S. eradication policy for CWR appears to be no longer technically and economically justified and recommends that it no longer be considered of quarantine significance.

Based on the recommendations of the EE, we are proposing to change APHIS policy so that CWR would no longer be considered of quarantine significance if detected domestically or on imported plants for planting.

Based on the conclusions of the EE and the pest lists, we have developed a commodity import evaluation document (CIED) that recommends a systems approach to mitigate the quarantine pest risk associated with the importation of Chrysanthemum spp. and synonymous genera (Archanthemis marschalliana, Argyranthemum spp., Brachanthemum fruticosum, Coleostephus multicaulis, C. myconis, Dendranthema spp., Glebionis spp., Heteranthemis spp., Hulteniella integrifolia, Leucanthemella spp., Leucanthemopsis spp., Leucanthemum spp., Mauranthemum paludosum, Nipponanthemum nipponicum, Nivellea nivellei, Opisthopappus taihangensis, Pentzia incana, Plagius spp., Rhodanthemum spp., Tanacetum spp., Tripleurospermum spp., and Xylanthemum spp.) cuttings and in vitro plantlets from Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Ethiopia, Germany, Guatemala, Kenya, Mexico, the Netherlands, Nicaragua, Panama, Spain, Tanzania, Tunisia, Uganda, the United Kingdom, and Vietnam. The CIED also proposes a systems approach to mitigate the quarantine pest risk associated with the importation of cuttings, in vitro plantlets, and plants with roots of these genera from Canada.

In accordance with paragraph (e) of § 319.37–4, we are announcing the availability of our pest lists, CIED, and EE for public review and comment. These documents may be viewed on the Regulations.gov website or in our reading room (see ADDRESSES above for a link to Regulations.gov and information on the location and hours of the reading room). You may request paper copies of these documents by calling or writing to the person listed under FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT. Please refer to the subject of the analysis you wish to review when requesting copies.

After reviewing any comments that we receive, we will announce our decision regarding whether to no longer consider CWR a quarantine pest domestically and for purposes of our plants for planting regulations. If we determine that it should no longer be considered of quarantine significance, we will also announce our decision regarding the importation of Chrysanthemum spp. and synonymous genera (Archanthemis marschalliana, Argyranthemum spp., Brachanthemum fruticosum, Coleostephus multicaulis, C. myconis, Dendranthema spp., Glebionis spp., Heteranthemis spp., Hulteniella integrifolia, Leucanthemella spp., Leucanthemopsis spp., Leucanthemum spp., Mauranthemum paludosum, Nipponanthemum nipponicum, Nivellea nivellei, Opisthopappus taihangensis, Pentzia incana, Plagius spp., Rhodanthemum spp., Tanacetum spp., Tripleurospermum spp., and Xylanthemum spp.) cuttings and in vitro plantlets from Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Ethiopia, Germany, Guatemala, Kenya, Mexico, the Netherlands, Nicaragua, Panama, Spain, Tanzania, Tunisia, Uganda, the United Kingdom, and Vietnam into the continental United States, and the importation of cuttings, in vitro plantlets and plants with roots for planting of Chrysanthemum spp. and the specified synonymous genera from Canada under a systems approach in a subsequent notice.

If finalized, the requirements of the systems approach will be added to the Plants for Planting Manual in accordance with paragraph (a) of § 319.37–20.

the committee represents the cooperating States in:

- Advising the Department on administrative procedures and interpretations of the Plan provisions contained in 9 CFR.
- Helping the Department evaluate comments on proposed Plan amendments.
- Recommending to the Secretary any changes in Plan provisions when postponement until the next Plan Conference would seriously impair program operations.

The committee meets at least annually. In the even years, the committee meets in conjunction with the NPIP Biennial Conference.
