

Assessment of Federal Regulations and Policies on Families

The NCUA has determined that these revisions to IRPS 13–1 will not affect family well-being within the meaning of section 654 of the Treasury and General Government Appropriations Act, 1999.²⁹ The revisions to IRPS 13–1 may increase the ability of minority depository institutions to provide financial services to families. However, the Board does not have a means to quantify how this might affect family well-being as described in factors included in the legislation, which include the effects of the action on: the stability and safety of the family; parental authority and rights in the education, supervision, and nurture of their children; the ability of families to support their functions or substitute governmental activity for these functions; and increases or decreases to disposable income.

Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act—Congressional Review Act

The Congressional Review chapter of the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act of 1996 generally provides for congressional review of agency rules.³⁰ A reporting requirement is triggered in instances where the NCUA issues a final rule as defined in the Administrative Procedure Act.³¹ Besides being subject to congressional oversight, an agency rule may also be subject to a delayed effective date if it is a “major rule.” The NCUA does not believe this revised IRPS is a “major rule” within the meaning of the relevant sections of the statute. As required by the statute, the NCUA will submit this final IRPS to OMB for it to determine if this final IRPS is a “major rule” for purposes of the statute. The NCUA also will file appropriate reports with Congress and the Government Accountability Office so this rule may be reviewed.

Secretary of the Board.
