

provision. The phase-in provisions for companies ceasing to be Foreign Private Issuers are consistent with NYSE rules and appear to be a reasonable accommodation.

The amended rules will also address the treatment of companies that wish to avail themselves of a cure period following the expiration of a phase-in period with respect to the independence requirements applicable to the board of directors, audit committee and compensation committee, the permissibility of which the rules are currently silent.⁶³ In prohibiting a cure period following the expiration of a phase-in period (unless the company demonstrated compliance with the applicable requirement during such phase-in period and then fell out of compliance before the expiration of the phase-in period), the Exchange states it seeks to limit the maximum time a company may remain listed without fully complying with independent committees or the independent board requirements. The Commission believes, given the importance of these requirements to assure adequate oversight, that it is reasonable not to provide a cure period under such circumstances because the company has already had a phase-in period and failed to comply throughout that period.⁶⁴ The greater clarity and uniformity of treatment afforded by the proposal can help to foster accountability of companies' corporate governance practices.

In addition, the Commission believes that the renumbering of certain rules and other non-substantive changes, clarifications and corrections will add clarity to the Exchange's corporate governance listing rules, as well as remove any confusion regarding the application of phase-in periods.

Finally, as described above, many of the changes proposed by Nasdaq are similar to rules that were previously approved for the NYSE and found to be consistent with the Act.

⁶³ The Exchange states it is codifying its current position. See Notice, supra note 3, at 46532. The Exchange proposal is also amending Rule 5810(c)(3)(E) to describe procedures for administering a cure period if one member of the compensation committee fails to comply with the compensation requirement in Rule 5605(d)(2)(A) in certain circumstances. See also Rule 5805(d)(4) (Cure Period for Compensation Committee).

⁶⁴ While the Exchange is proposing to allow a cure period if the company came into compliance and then fell out of compliance during the phase-in period, any cure period will be measured from the earlier period when the company fell out of compliance as opposed to end of the phase-in period.

IV. Conclusion

It is therefore ordered, pursuant to Section 19(b)(2) of the Act⁶⁵ that the proposed rule change (SR–NASDAQ–2024–019) be, and hereby is, approved.

For the Commission, by the Division of Trading and Markets, pursuant to delegated authority.⁶⁶

Secretary.
