Abstract of Information Available

Human remains representing, at least, one individual have been identified. No associated funerary objects are present. The individual was removed from Elizabeth Lake, Deadman's Cave, Los Angeles County, CA. A nearly complete skeleton was found unnumbered in the LACMNH collections with no accession records (HSRA–46). In 1995, LACMNH conducted an inventory of human remains in its collections and identified these remains to be female with an age range at the time of death to be between 40–60. "Elizabeth Lake" is written on one of the bones and "Elizabeth Lake, Deadman's Cave" is written on the mandible. There are no known individuals.

Since this initial assessment, in consultation with representatives of the Yuhaaviatam of San Manuel Nation (previously listed as San Manuel Band of Mission Indians, California) and non-federally recognized California Indian groups including the Fernandeano Tataviam Band of Mission Indians, the LACMNH has investigated the collection history of these human remains but have not been able to identify further information.

Based on biological and geographical information, the human remains are determined to be Native American. Archaeologists have asserted that Serrano and Tataviam peoples have continuously occupied the Antelope Valley, the San Gabriel Mountains, and the surrounding areas for up to 5,000–6,000 years BP. Ethnographer, John Peabody Harrington recorded several Serrano place names throughout the Antelope Valley during his interviews with Yuhaaviatam leader, Santos Manuel in 1918. Manuel's testimony and Serrano Traditional Knowledge identify Elizabeth Lake as home to Serrano peoples since time immemorial.

Human remains representing, at least, 22 individuals have been identified. No associated funerary objects are present. The individuals were removed from the Vasquez Rocks (CA–LAN–361) site in northern Los Angeles County, CA. Owners of the land on which the site now rests, Dr. Ascher and family, spent many years digging at the site in the mid-1900s. In 1966, the location was bulldozed by vandals. Between 1967–1970, LACMNH curator Dr. Charles Rozaire, as part of the California State University, Northridge Archaeological School, held field schools at the site, where students and supervisors excavated the bulldozed site and recovered artifacts and bone originally identified as faunal (non-human) bone. As a result of the looting and bulldozing, the artifacts and bones recovered from the site were not in original context and were highly fragmented.

In consultation with representatives of the Yuhaaviatam of San Manuel Nation (previously listed as San Manuel Band of Mission Indians, California) and non-federally recognized California Indian groups including the Fernandeano Tataviam Band of Mission Indians, in 2021, LACMNH conducted a detailed bioarcheological assessment of the bone recovered from CA–LAN–361 resulting in identification of human remains. The report identified 14 children with an age range between 37–39 weeks gestation/perinate and 10–12 years old. It is likely that some of the children whose specific age ranges could not be assessed were older than 12 years. There are at least eight adults represented. Among them, two are likely males (represented by a mandible and a temporal bone fragment) and one older adult. Most of the remains are extremely fragmented and there are some non-human skeletal remains in the assemblages. Most of the remains were impacted by the history of vandalism and heat from cremation with varying temperatures and exposure. There are no known humans.

Based on archaeological context and information learned from consultations, these individuals are Native American. Based on UFO artifact assemblage typologies, obsidian hydration readings and one radiocarbon date, archaeological evidence demonstrates
