

Because kidney and liver transplants are no longer subject to the Research Criteria, NIH plans to retain these outcomes only where applicable (e.g., for deceased donor heart-living donor kidney transplants, deceased donor heart-living donor liver transplants, and for other organs subject to the Research Criteria).

Transplant Recipients: NIH has added several additional data elements and outcome measures to those included for transplant recipients in the 2015 Research Criteria. NIH has added the following outcome measures: type of rejection (antibody mediated versus cellular rejection), chronic allograft vasculopathy (heart), chronic lung allograft dysfunction (lung), hospital infections, estimated glomerular filtration rate (heart and lung), HIV superinfection, graft failure (heart and lung), re-transplantation, and simultaneous multiple organ transplants.

While not included as a requirement of the Research Criteria, NIH has included the following recommendation regarding patient management:

NIH recommends that transplant programs and healthcare providers follow current and updated practice management guidelines. For specific guidance, transplant programs and healthcare providers should consult vaccination guidance (<https://www.cdc.gov/acip-recs/hcp/vaccine-specific/index.html>) and expert guidance for the management of patients with HIV pre-, during-, and post-transplant summarized in: Transplantation in people with HIV (<https://clinicalinfo.hiv.gov/en/guidelines/hiv-clinical-guidelines-adult-and-adolescent-arv/whats-new>).
