ARTICLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SECTION 1. No establishment shall be permitted to open a key-cutting department unless at least one Locksmith with three or more years' experience is placed in charge, or is working full time within the concern. This shall not be construed to mean that when such a Locksmith is employed, that he should spend the entire time as a Locksmith. However, it shall mean that during the entire time the department is open for business, he shall be available for purposes of lock work if the occasion demands his services.

SEC. 2. No Locksmith shall, under this code, make a passkey for any firm or individual without first ascertaining that the person ordering such is entitled to, or has the authority to have same made, and in no case shall any Locksmith make a key by code number or otherwise for locks not brought to his establishment, for persons unknown to him, or to persons not presenting positive proof that they are the rightful owners of said lock, or authorized to procure same by the proper owner or authorities.

SEC. 7. Firms selling passkeys shall obtain the name and address of party purchasing same and a record kept of the type of passkey purchased.

ARTICLE IV—UNFAIR TRADE PRACTICES

The following practices are now prevalent and are deemed by this organization as unfair and having a deleterious effect upon the working conditions and wages of those working at the trade, and upon the trade as a whole.

SECTION 1. The establishment of a scale of prices which does not return sufficient revenue to recompense the shop operator for the time spent in turning out the product, the investment he has made in order to be able to turn out said product, and the material, supplies, power, etc., used in turning it out.

SEC. 2. The practice of other concerns, engaging in the simpler operations or services of the locksmiths, such as duplicating, etc., thereby depriving the locksmith of his just revenue for such services.

SEC. 3. The practice of other concerns, whose major operations are along other lines, of duplicating keys, charging for such services only a nominal sum, or doing it free of charge, as a trade stimulator for their major line of endeavor, thus depriving the locksmith of work and compensation he should be receiving.

SEC. 4. The practice of persons not experienced as locksmiths of charging less for locksmithing operations they perform than is charged by the locksmiths operating in that community.

SEC. 5. The practice by either locksmiths or other individuals of impairing the security of any lock in any manner whatsoever, whether by removing parts or weakening the lock structure.

SEC. 6. The practice of making keys in office buildings, hotels, real-estate offices, schools, and other institutions, by any except locksmiths, as defined in Article 1.

SEC. 7. The practice of allowing quantity discounts to customers not entitled to such.

SEC. 8. The practice of traveling locksmiths have a small capital outlay, of cutting prices prevailing in the community in which they happen to be, in competition to firms who pay taxes, rent, etc.

ARTICLE V—EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

This organization recommends the appointment of an Executive Committee, fairly representing the locksmithing trade of different sections of the country, the work of this committee being to establish such rules as it finds necessary to remedy the above practices, and to regulate the trade in any manner found necessary by the adoption of such rules.
