EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

U.S. INTERESTS AND THE EAST-WEST BALANCE

HON. RICHARD L. ROUDEBUSH

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 19, 1970

Mr. ROUDEBUSH. Mr. Speaker, during the recent Veterans of Foreign Wars national legislative conferences held in Washington, that organization was privileged to hear remarks by the Honorable Robert Ellsworth, the U.S. Permanent Representative on the North Atlantic Council.

Mr. Ellsworth delivered his remarks March 8. Because of the fine quality of these remarks, plus the fact that they contain so many interesting items, I insert them in the RECORD:

U.S. INTERESTS AND THE EAST-WEST BALANCE

I. INTRODUCTION

Besides the honor and pleasure which I attach to the invitation to speak to you this morning, this is, for me, an opportunity—an important opportunity—to discuss a matter which concerns us as citizens, as taxpayers, and as veterans of the foreign wars of the United States. Because these issues are complex and because they are surrounded by high emotion, it is not often that one can attempt a realistic public analysis of them. But with men such as yourselves: mature, having already been exposed personally to the ultimate risks, and devoted to our nation's strength and well-being, I expect that mentioning dangers will not cause alarm, and that mentioning hopes will not cause euphoria.

So I intend to discuss the pattern of events which affect the balance between East and West—with particular reference to US interests in Europe.

I labor under one handicap in doing this. That is the fact that I'm stationed in NATO headquarters in Brussels, while some of the most important actions affecting our interests in Europe and NATO are taking place here in the United States. You could probably tell me about the mood of the nation which is causing the present Congressional reconsideration of some of the vital concerns of American foreign policy.

Despite my geographic exile, however, I fully recognize that we, the American people, do have some profoundly important and difficult domestic problems here at home. As if domestic issues were not enough, the United States is also faced with severe problems overseas. In both cases, the difficulties are sufficiently serious that the imaginary line between the two disappears entirely. Anxiety about foreign problems is an ingredient of our internal politics today. And, in turn, domestic political, economic and social pressures could affect and inhibit what our nation can do in the international arena.

Many cans of worms are open, and it would be easy, in this situation, to become discouraged about managing any of the difficult areas of our national life. That we must not and need not be discouraged is indicated by what is being done by the Nixon Administration about the dilemma which developed, during the past few years, into the gravest mixture of domestic and foreign trouble. I believe that President Nixon deserves both our applause and our continuing support for his handling of the Vietnam situation both in Vietnam and here on the home front.

However, long-standing disappointment at our lack of political and military success as promised in Vietnam is behind much of the pressure in Congress for immediate and substantial unilateral cuts in our NATO forces. This is understandable, perhaps, but it is not realistic.

You will recall that in the early 1960's our government abandoned the strategy of massive retaliation and shifted to a broad strategy of flexible response. The organization and training of our general purpose forces, particularly the Army, were changed accordingly and a great deal of money and effort were invested in providing our military establishment with the ability to handle brushfire wars limited conflicts—counter-insurgency—on a flexible basis.

The first major all-out test of this new strategy and this new capability was in Vietnam.

Unfortunately, and not from any fault or lack of courage or leadership on the part of our military, the success which was promised did not attend that test. In the minds of many Americans, the use—and even the existence—of general purpose forces has become associated with the casualties and brutalizing effects of the Vietnam war, with its fantastic costs, and with its lack of the promised success.

From the reality of the Vietnam experience, set in a primitive and intrinsically remote strip of tropical coast in Southeast Asia, an unconscious analogy has been drawn with our position in Europe. Some in Congress say: if with 500,000 general purpose forces in Vietnam we have suffered great national agonies and yet have been unable to achieve success for the United States—what reason is there to suppose that 300,000 general purpose forces in Europe could do any better for the national interest?

If this dreadful fallacy should prevail, what a tragic regression that would be for the United States, for stability, for peace, and for freedom in the world.

II. PROBING THE ENIGMA

In Europe, where our national interests are more substantial and significant than they are in any other area outside our own fifty states, we are members of mankind's strongest and most successful alliance. NATO is the one alliance which unites us with allies with whom we share a common history, a common culture, common economic and environmental challenges, and most certainly a common love and responsibility for freedom. Of all of our alliances, this alliance is the best bargain because it adds the most to our national strength and security. And this is the alliance which protects that territory upon which the world balance of power—and of freedom—depends.

The most important reason for NATO's original existence was collective security: to provide for the common defense against possible aggression, and to deter the potential aggressor from initiating aggression.

NATO has delivered what it promised: peace in the West.

The most important potential aggressor the NATO allies were thinking about when they signed the North Atlantic Treaty was the Soviet Union. At that time—1949—the Soviet Union was thought of as a riddle wrapped in an enigma. The main thing we knew about this enigma was that it was terribly difficult to live with on the same planet. Even when "peaceful coexistence" became a watchword, the relationship remained difficult.

We now know a little more about the enigma of the Kremlin than we did in 1949. We know much about Soviet military capability, which I will discuss in a moment. And we know from the invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 that the Soviets use their military capability when they believe their political interests require it.

But we also have valid reason to believe that Soviet leaders see areas of common interest with us. Therefore we, together with our NATO allies, are engaged in a number of explorations to see whether, twenty-five years after the end of World War II, it would be possible to achieve a greater measure of stability and security in Europe. We are probing the enigma. We don't know what the results will be, but we can confidently expect one positive achievement: through our exploration of the enigma, NATO will know more about it, and we will have some important updated intelligence on its intransigence, and on its rationality. You gentlemen know the value of such intelligence, and you also know that it is time to try to achieve greater stability in this civilization for which we fought repeatedly in the first half of the Twentieth Century.

The character of NATO's explorations must be carefully understood. As President Nixon has just said in his Foreign Policy Report, the questions which divide nations "will not be dissipated by changes of atmosphere or dissolved in cordial personal relations between statesmen."

Based neither on complacency nor on a desire for merely improving the atmosphere, we have opened some important explorations recently.

The Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, which may prove to be an important asset for international stability, entered into force this past week. Our hope now is that all nations will see fit to become signatories.

The Conference of the Committee on Disarmament, which is now in session at Geneva, will return to the question of a treaty to ban the emplacement of nuclear weapons on the ocean floors.

The stage for progress in other areas at Geneva was set last November by the President's historic renunciation of the first use of lethal and incapacitating chemical weapons, and of all methods of biological warfare. With this as a prologue, we are hoping for progress in Geneva toward agreement on a treaty on biological warfare.

The UK, US and France have, as you know, initiated soundings with the USSR concerning the possibility of improving the situation in and around Berlin.

The Federal Republic of Germany has taken the lead in bilateral contacts with the East. This West German "Ostpolitik" has led to discussions with the governments of the Soviet Union, Poland, and Eastern Germany.

Equally significant, given the long experience of the Germans in living next door to the Warsaw Pact, is their firm and public agreement with NATO's interest in possible mutual force reductions in Europe, which would be balanced in scope and timing.

One of the tests of the Soviet attitude toward European security will be their willingness to talk about reducing the large military forces presently concentrated in Europe—East and West. In the Declaration of last December's NATO Ministerial meeting in Brussels, the Allies said they were preparing the studies required for a realistic and feasible consideration of this subject. Of course, any significant unilateral reduction of NATO's conventional strength on our part would make it unlikely that the Warsaw Pact would feel they had anything to gain from discussing mutual reductions.

In all of the initiatives I have just mentioned, NATO has played a crucial role as the political-diplomatic center for consultation among fifteen allies, allowing all of us to develop contacts with the East in a spirit of trust and confidence among ourselves. Since these negotiations affect the interests of all, such political trust is necessary and could probably only be produced by the kind of confident consultation which NATO provides.

The relationship between NATO's defense posture and our effort to reduce tensions through negotiation is clearly recognized. The same West German government which has been active in exploring negotiating possibilities with the Warsaw Pact powers, is also party to the agreement reached with the British government last week to support the deployment of the British Sixth Armoured Brigade to Germany.

This deployment more than fills the gap left by Canadian force cuts, and it is a product of European willingness to accept a heavier burden in order to strengthen NATO's common defense.

I come, finally, to the event in this season of exploration and negotiation which has attracted the most attention, and probably deserves it. After careful consultations with our NATO allies, the United States engaged in preliminary talks in Helsinki last fall with the Soviet Union on the subject of possible limitations of strategic arms. These SALT talks, as they are now called, will resume in Vienna on April 16, again after full and deep consultation with our allies.

I said that the SALT talks deserve the attention they have received because, if they succeed, they could result in limiting the driving competition in strategic armaments between the world's two great superpowers. With this clear hope before us, we must see clearly the very difficult problems that present themselves.

III. BALANCING THE ENIGMA

The most obvious of these difficulties, when one is talking about SALT, is the increasing Soviet strategic capability about which we hear so much, especially the augmented menace of the Soviet SS-9 intercontinental ballistic missile.

That, however, is only part of the problem. Since we in NATO are no longer committed to a strategy of immediate nuclear response to every aggression, and since the Soviet Union is clearly thinking in more than just intercontinental ballistic missile terms, the whole range of Soviet military capability must be weighed, as it relates to our own and to NATO's capability.

The impartial Institute of Strategic Studies estimates that in Northern and Central Europe the Warsaw Pact has substantially more combat and direct support troops, more tanks, more interceptor aircraft, and more light bombers than we do.

The imposing Soviet and Warsaw Pact strength on the European mainland is matched by the dramatic build-up of Soviet military power in the Mediterranean, a build-up whose significance is underscored by the conflict between Israel and the Arab states in the eastern Mediterranean, and by the political changes in the area which have had the net effect of adding somewhat to the facilities available to the Soviets.

But even this picture of the balance is one-dimensional unless one sees the trends on the two sides of the balance over the last few years.

During the 1960's, the growth in Soviet expenditures supported major improvements in strategic force capabilities, as well as numerical increases and modernization of Warsaw Pact general purpose forces.

In contrast, American forces in Europe have been reduced by about 100,000 men, from 1962 to the present time. During that same period, our West European allies have been increasing their defense spending (as they are this year, too). And just last week our European allies in NATO showed their willingness to sustain a larger share of the common defense by arranging for the deployment to Germany of the British Sixth Armoured Brigade, the 36th Heavy Air Defense Regiment, and the 18th Helicopter Squadron.

At the same time, British Defense Minister Healey stated that the central problem facing NATO is the pressure for a further cutback of the American contingent. We have seen why this is the case. We have seen that the conventional and nuclear forces arrayed against NATO have never been greater, while NATO's forces in Western Europe—mainly U.S. forces—have been reduced.

This, then, is the context into which any present consideration of further reductions falls. It comes at a time when the other side has been beefing itself up. It comes at a time when our side has been thinning out.

There should be no mistake, therefore, about the potentially de-stabilizing effect of any substantial U.S. withdrawals at this time. No man has a better vantage for seeing this than the Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, U.S. Army General Andrew Goodpaster. He warned just last month that a sudden major reduction of American forces in Europe could destroy the Alliance and seriously threaten the security of the United States.

We are involved here, of course, in prediction and conjecture. Nobody knows exactly what would happen following the substantial reductions that have been proposed in Congress in recent weeks. We do know, that the balance of power, of interests, and of freedom, would tip further. We know that, to some extent, confidence would be eroded, the confidence of our allies that we would and could honor our long-standing treaty commitment. Even more important for deterring aggression, the confidence of Soviet military planners that we would and could honor our commitment might be eroded. So, while we don't know the exact shape of the scenario that would follow, I, for one, wouldn't want to risk the success, the stability, the security—yes, the peace—that we have successfully established and maintained for twenty years—by hasty action.

The worst situation would be where NATO could realistically be defended only by unlimited nuclear warfare. That is the prescription for political blackmail. Either one yields to the blackmail, or one suffers catastrophe. When that is the choice, blackmailers become bold.

IV. CONCLUSION: A QUESTION OF TIMING

Am I suggesting that things are going to stay the same, with the same requirement for the same US troop levels in Europe, for all time to come?

Emphatically—no. There has not been, in recent times, a period of greater diplomatic activity in Europe. There is much to be done. We find ourselves in a time when the imagination and patience of leaders is being called upon in many arenas to work on political and diplomatic problems long overdue for solution.

What we face, at this moment in history, is a critical question of timing. We appear to be going into an active era of negotiations with the countries of the Warsaw Pact, with the hope of increasing the safety, the stability and the security of Europe—and therefore of the world. We may fail, in which case we will know more about current Soviet intransigence than we did at the beginning. But we and our allies are going into the various talks—in Berlin, Vienna, Warsaw, Geneva and elsewhere—with the hope that we may have some success. While we are doing this—while we are attempting to make progress toward greater stability—we most certainly do not want to do anything, at this same moment, which would result in greater instability.

Above all, we need vision: we must not do anything today that would place NATO, and the United States, at the end of two or three years of evolution in the central question of the balance in Europe, at a disadvantage. Further substantial, unilateral, reductions of American forces in Europe could only have the effect of reducing our chances of maintaining that balance.

Therefore, both the optimists and the pessimists can join together in reasoning that this is not the time to force substantial unilateral troop cuts.

I hope that the Veterans of Foreign Wars will support this view. I hope you will agree that this is a critical point in history, that it is a point where we do not want further to de-stabilize the present balance.

We live today in a period when the threat of war continues to haunt our enjoyment of the peace, a time which calls upon us to display the qualities demanded of men in both war and peace. Winston Churchill said that in war we must have resolution, and in peace we must have good will.

If, through fatigue or lack of patience on the diplomatic front, we lose our good will, we could lose the chances which now present themselves for building a stable peace.

But we shall also surely be lost if, through fatigue and lack of patience on the strategic front, we lose the resolution which has brought us our present chances for building a stable peace.

BY STATES

HON. JOSEPH M. MONTOYA

OF NEW MEXICO
IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

Thursday, March 19, 1970

Mr. BYRD of West Virginia. Mr. President, at the request of the Senator from New Mexico (Mr. MONTOYA), I ask unanimous consent that a statement by Mr. MONTOYA and State tables of 1971 budget estimates of the Office of Education be printed in the Extensions of Remarks.

There being no objection the statement and tables were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT OF SENATOR MONTOYA

Mr. MONTOYA. Mr. President, Fiscal Year 1970 will long be remembered in the annals of our times, if for no other reason than the fact that it saw a long and difficult working of the public will on the appropriations for the Office of Education.

It was a time which demonstrated the desire of the Congress, on both sides of the aisle, to provide funding considerably in excess of the desires of the Bureau of the Budget, and the Administration to carry out the objectives of the educational statutes enacted in the past decade.

It was a time that saw Congress, with reluctance yield to the rarely-used legislative power of the President who vetoed the initial proposals contained in H.R. 13111 which, had they been accepted, would have provided slightly more than a billion dollars for the OE programs above the budget estimates of the spring of 1969.

The bill which became law provided slightly in excess of $600 million more than the spring budget requests.

Because of the interest which has been generated by the appropriations fight on educational funding, and because of my belief that the state-by-state tables setting forth the amounts for the formula programs can be most helpful to my colleagues in responding to inquiries they have received, I asked the Office of Education to provide me with a tabular listing. This I have just received.

TRIBUTE TO PFC. JOE L. (CORKY) RIVERA

HON. RICHARD C. WHITE

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 19, 1970

Mr. WHITE. Mr. Speaker, I have previously remarked, on the floor of this House, that my constituents of Spanish-speaking heritage have rendered distinguished service to their country and the cause of freedom, in the two world wars, in Korea, and in Vietnam. I have pointed out that their names on the casualty lists, and among Medal of Honor winners, have proved their loyalty to their country beyond question.

Today, I would like to cite a conspicuous example of this loyalty, the Winkler County News, of Kermit, Tex., carries on its front page of March 12, under the heading "Community Pays Tribute," a picture of representatives from Kermit veterans organizations standing at salute, while uniformed pallbearers carry the flag draped casket of Pfc. Corky Rivera to its final resting place.

The accompanying article recites that Pfc. Joe L. (Corky) Rivera, killed in action in Vietnam February 25, was the fifth of the nine sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rivera, Sr., to serve their country in the armed services. Manuel Rivera served more than 13 years with the Army, 1953 to 1966, with two tours of duty in Germany. Joe Rivera, Jr., was in the Marines from 1960 until 1966, and served in Vietnam and in Hawaii. Gilbert Rivera was in service from 1962 to 1964 and saw duty in Germany. Another son is still in service. S. Sgt. Tommy Rivera entered the Army in 1965 and is now stationed in Hawaii.

Mr. Speaker, this example of dedicated service to our country by its citizens of Latin American heritage is not unusual, although the circumstances of this occasion call it dramatically to our attention. In every city and town of west Texas, similar proof of love of country and dedicated service could be cited.

It should be mentioned, further, that Corky Rivera is the second young man from Kermit to give his life for his country in Vietnam. Just a year ago yesterday, March 18, 1968, Cpl. Monte Ray Cooley, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Cooley of Kermit, was killed in action.

I know the Members of this body join me in this tribute to courageous and devoted service, and in sympathy to the families of these brave young men.

PROMPT ACTION URGED ON FISCAL 1971 APPROPRIATIONS BILLS

HON. THOMAS S. KLEPPE

OF NORTH DAKOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 19, 1970

Mr. KLEPPE. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend Chairman MAHON of the House Committee on Appropriations for his expressed determination to report out the regular fiscal 1971 appropriation bills on schedule this year. I sincerely hope that he will receive all the cooperation he needs to accomplish this goal. The practice of running the Government on "continuing resolutions" is a poor way to do business.

I was particularly gratified to have the chairman's confirmation of what had been only a rumor—that the bill for the Office of Education, separate from the Labor-HEW appropriation bill, will be considered by the House during the week of April 13.

I am sure I need not remind my colleagues of the confusion our school districts have experienced this year. Our school systems cannot be expected to continue operating under the uncertainty caused by congressional inaction and delay of the type experienced with the fiscal 1970 bill.

Congress has shown many times in the past that it can move effectively and promptly. I urge my colleagues, in the spirit of cooperation, better management and efficiency, to push for early action on the fiscal 1971 appropriation bills.

DO NOT TAX THE HAND THAT HELPS

HON. ODIN LANGEN

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 19, 1970

Mr. LANGEN. Mr. Speaker, if the degree of wastefulness within the Federal Government might be compared with the amount of grime to be found within the family laundry, I would expect Arthur Godfrey would have to give up advertising enzyme cleaner products in complete despair.

As disturbing as this thought may be, there can be absolutely no justification whatsoever for a matter recently brought to my attention, and that is the drain of millions of dollars belonging to the American people now being paid in the form of taxes to foreign governments.

It would seem that on the one hand, the United States by design or default has been stuck with the job of protecting a sizable portion of the free world, while startlingly enough, these nations who are the principal beneficiaries of our overseas Defense Establishment extract additional sums by taxing through direct and indirect means the very mechanism designed to insure their safety.

Whether this be deliberate or accidental, it nevertheless is inexcusable and a meanness of the worst sorts. Can we then condemn our citizens who in their infinite patience cry out when they look at their W-2 forms, and ask with hand-on-forehead for an accounting of all those billions that have evaporated into the ethereal twilight zone known as the U.S. Treasury?

This matter cannot be passed over, and, indeed, I urge my colleagues as well as the American people to join with me in calling for action to halt this inexcusable drain on our public resources.

Below is a copy of a letter which I am sending to both the Secretaries of State and Defense—let it serve as a model which might be used by others who are exasperated by the never-ending raids on the U.S. Treasury:

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D.C., March 18, 1970.

HON. WILLIAM P. ROGERS,
Secretary of State,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. SECRETARY: I am writing to urge that you work in cooperation with the Secretary of State to end the payment of taxes by the United States in connection with its defense operations in foreign lands.

A recent report by the General Accounting Office gives numerous examples of direct and indirect taxes now being paid to such nations as Vietnam, Thailand, Germany, the United Kingdom, etc., which is in direct contradiction to the spirit and provisions of the Mutual Security Act of 1951.

Since the United States has undertaken heavy financial commitments in the defense of the free world, those nations who have been beneficiaries should not expect the American people to pay taxes for the privilege of rendering them aid.

Therefore, I ask that you please give your immediate attention to this serious matter, and I would appreciate a report on your findings and actions to be taken pursuant to this problem.

Your cooperation is most appreciated.

Sincerely,

ODIN LANGEN,
Member of Congress.

FREDERICK, MD., POST OFFICE
CRISIS

HON. J. GLENN BEALL, JR.

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 19, 1970

Mr. BEALL of Maryland. Mr. Speaker, a problem which has reached crisis proportions in my district is the failure to appoint a postmaster for Frederick City, an office which will have been vacant for 2 years on April 1. Recently, an editorial which appeared in the Frederick News of Frederick, Md., addressed itself to this problem and endorsed a letter to the Postmaster General by U.S. Senator CHARLES McC. MATHIAS in which he decried not only the protracted delay in naming a Frederick City postmaster but also the deplorable physical condition of the Frederick City Post Office. The March 9 editorial states:

MATHIAS VERDICT ENDORSED

Timely is the protest of Senator Charles McC. Mathias to Postmaster General Winton M. Blount against the protracted delay in naming a Postmaster for Frederick City.

The senator points out that on April 1 the office of Postmaster in this city will have been vacant for two years.

And he well adds that despite the fact that postal personnel in Frederick City have shown unusual dedication and loyalty in carrying on their duties in the uncertain atmosphere that prevails, that there has been a visible deterioration in morale.

The senator adds the fear that this will be reflected in efficiency and service and will have an impact on public attitudes of the community to the entire postal service.

It might well have been added that a similar lack of Postmasters for extended periods occurs in the Frederick County towns of Sabillasville, Keymar and Libertytown.

Presumably Mr. Blount will reply to the letter of protest that naming of these officials is waiting for the passage by the Congress of the Nixon administration's proposal to divorce such offices from politics and put them under the merit system.

While there is much to be said for this plan, which has passed the Senate but is deadlocked in a log jam of almost a year's duration in the House of Representatives, conceivably such an impasse should not be permitted to remain indefinitely.

It would seem more judicious in the interests of postal efficiency and public convenience to fill the hundreds of vacant positions scattered about the country under the former system and let the new bi-partisan policy become effective if and when Congress finally enacts the Nixon proposal.

In his letter to the Postmaster General, Senator Mathias also draws renewed attention to the deplorable physical condition of the Frederick City Post Office.

It is a matter of more than two years since it was announced that an addition and renovations to the antiquated plant would be initiated but thus far there has been no sign of action.

As the senator points out, the Frederick City Post Office was constructed in 1917 and over the years has become hopelessly inadequate. Beyond this many of the original lighting and plumbing facilities are still in use although hopelessly outmoded.

At times it has been necessary to erect cardboard rain guards to protect the mail from a leaking roof and falling plaster. And the 1937 addition to the original building is now also obsolete.

"What was a problem is becoming a crisis," the senator concludes. We heartily endorse his verdict.

THE 97TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ABOLITION OF SLAVERY IN PUERTO RICO

HON. FRANK ANNUNZIO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 19, 1970

Mr. ANNUNZIO. Mr. Speaker, on March 22, the Puerto Ricans will celebrate one of the most important days in the history of democratic tradition, and most especially, in the history of Puerto Rico, for on this date 97 years ago in 1873, slavery was abolished forever in Puerto Rico.

It is my privilege today to congratulate the Puerto Ricans on their observance of this great achievement. I am glad to join with them in rejoicing over their good fortune in throwing off the yoke of slavery and in establishing a democratic government of the highest caliber—the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

I have had the honor to serve in the Congress with the distinguished Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico, Hon. Jorge L. Córdova, and I wish to commend him for the outstanding service he has given to his constituents and to our Nation since he was elected in 1968.

On this occasion I also want to wish the people of Puerto Rico continuing success in a relationship which has proven to be fruitful for both the United States and Puerto Rico.

The history of slavery in Puerto Rico dates back to the 15th and 16th centuries when the Spanish colonial authorities began importing Negro slaves from Africa. The freeing of the slaves in the United States, under the authority of the 13th amendment, generated anti-slavery spirit among the liberals of Puerto Rico, several of whom began a strong campaign to emulate the North American example.

Two great leaders of the abolitionist cause in Puerto Rico were Roman Baldorioty de Castro and Jose Julio Acosta. Two others were Segundo Ruiz Belvis and Julio L. de Vizcaronde. All were active in the great campaign to kill the cause of slavery on Puerto Rican soil.

This was accomplished on March 22, 1873, to the benefit of everyone concerned. Set free from aristocratic exploitation, the Puerto Rican people have pulled together to establish their country as a keystone in the democratic framework of Latin America. Their love of liberty is unsurpassed and their democratic spirit is the basis of their lives.

I have the privilege of representing Americans of Puerto Rican descent who reside in the Seventh Congressional District of Illinois. They have made many valuable contributions to the advancement of the mutual beneficent objectives of Puerto Rico and the United States, and so today, I take great pleasure in extending best wishes to the people of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico on the anniversary of the abolition of slavery in their land and for continuing prosperity in the years ahead.

AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT UP-HOLDS BAN ON LEUKOSIS-
AFFECTED POULTRY

HON. RICHARD FULTON

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 19, 1970

Mr. FULTON of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, in late January, it was announced that an advisory committee of the Department of Agriculture had recommended that the Government relax its ban against the sales of certain diseased chickens for human consumption. This ban has to do with a long-standing Federal inspection policy under which poultry afflicted with diseases of the leukosis complex are condemned.

While the advisory committee's report was only a recommendation, it nevertheless aroused the immediate concern of the public as well as numerous scientists and researchers concerned with viral etiology of human diseases.

One of those concerned was William M. Mitchell, M.D., Ph. D., assistant professor of microbiology and medicine at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine.

On January 28, upon reading of the recommendation by the advisory committee, Dr. Mitchell wrote Secretary Hardin expressing his concern.

Mr. Speaker, I include Dr. Mitchell's letter and the news clipping to which he refers in the RECORD at this point:

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
Nashville, Tenn., January 28, 1970.
HON. CLIFFORD M. HARDIN,
Secretary of Agriculture of the United States,
U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. HARDIN: A bulletin from UPI which was printed in today's Nashville Tennessean (see inclosure) is most disturbing. It is incredible that any competent scientific advisory committee would recommend easing of the Agricultural Department's regulations on the use of leukosis bearing chickens for human consumption. There is a growing mass of evidence to support the thesis that human tumors (especially leukemia, lymphosarcoma, and osteogenic sarcoma) possess a viral etiology. From the wording of the UPI story, it would appear that the advisory committee's decision was based on the belief that a fowl virus would not be transmissible to other species. This is clearly not the case with regard to the Rous sarcoma virus in fowl which can be passed to mammalian cells (Svoboda, J., Nature, 186, 980, 1960; Chyle, P., Simkovic, D., and Hilgert, J., Folia Biol. (Prague), 9, 77, 1963). It would appear that rather than relaxing the rules concerning the sale of fowl bearing probable virus induced tumors, the rules should be tightened to the point of,

1. Destruction of strains with a high leukosis incidence.
2. The banning of use in animal foods (i.e., to prevent the possible establishment of new oncogenic lines in household pets and their possible establishment as an oncogenic viral reservoir in human disease).

I would be greatly interested in the composition of the scientific advisory committee that made this recommendation to the Department of Agriculture (as reported by the UPI).

Sincerely,
WILLIAM M. MITCHELL, M.D., Ph.D.,
Assistant Professor of Microbiology and Medicine.

DISEASED CHICKEN SALE PLAN PROTESTED

WASHINGTON.—The Consumer Federation of America (CFA) and the Butchers Union protested yesterday a recommendation that the government relax its ban against sales of certain diseased chickens for human consumption.

A scientific advisory panel recommended that the Agriculture Department regulation requiring condemnation of all chickens showing signs of leukosis, a cancer-like complex of poultry diseases, be eased on grounds scientists see no link between the ailment and diseases in humans.

But the recommendation was denounced yesterday by the CFA and Amalgamated Meat Cutters & Butcher workmen who said it would permit poultry processors to sell diseased birds to unsuspecting grocery shoppers, possibly subjecting them to leukosis.

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., chairman of a House consumer subcommittee, also urged the administration to give consumers a say-so in deciding whether to follow the recommendation.

Under current regulations, all chickens showing any sign of leukosis are barred from sale for human consumption, but may be sold for pet food. Under the recommendations, entire chickens would be condemned if they showed massive leukosis evidence. But if only minor tumors were found, inspectors would condemn the flawed part and the rest could be sold for human food.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend the Secretary of Agriculture for his prompt decision in this matter, which was announced on February 5. At that time, the Secretary announced that:

No changes will be made in the long-standing Federal inspection policy under which poultry affected with diseases of the leukosis complex are condemned.

Also, I would like to commend individuals such as Dr. Mitchell for showing their immediate concern and expressing it to Secretary Hardin. I am certain that this had a very positive impact on Secretary Hardin and influenced him in arriving at a decision at an early date.

MAN'S INHUMANITY TO MAN—
HOW LONG?

HON. WILLIAM J. SCHERLE

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 19, 1970

Mr. SCHERLE. Mr. Speaker, a child asks: "Where is daddy?" A mother asks: "How is my son?" A wife asks: "Is my husband alive or dead?"

Communist North Vietnam is sadistically practicing spiritual and mental genocide on over 1,400 American prisoners of war and their families.

How long?

SENATE—Friday, March 20, 1970

The Senate, as in legislative session, met at 11 o'clock a.m. and was called to order by the Acting President pro tempore (Mr. METCALF).

God of our fathers and our God, who has made and preserved us a Nation, we thank Thee for freedom's pioneers, for the heroes' valor, the patriots' devotion, and the toll of brain and hand by which this Nation has become great and strong. We bless Thee for our place in the march of life, for the sturdy warriors of the spirit who have moved ahead, and for the singing youth in the ranks behind. However few or many our days, we thank Thee for life, and that it is lived now when new vistas beckon and new disciplines are demanded.

As we offer to Thee the service of our minds and hearts this day, we pray that Thou wilt keep the Senate, our country, and our people in Thy hand. May this Nation ever be a light of hope to all who honor Thee and a means of grace to all who know Thee not.

Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.
