Defendants.

Case No. 1:13-CV-00116-BLW

INTRODUCTION

The Court has completed its full review of all the material sought to be sealed by the parties and third parties. In this decision, the Court identifies each document and portion of testimony that the parties and third parties want sealed, and explains its decision regarding each such request.

BACKGROUND

Before trial started, the Court issued a Pretrial Order, recognizing that compelling reasons must exist to seal any part of the testimony and exhibits. See Pretrial Order (Dkt. No. 209). The parties had reached an agreement – approved by the Court – as to three categories of information that would be sealed and available only the attorneys.

This material was designed as “Attorney Eyes Only” (AEO) and was defined as follows:

1. Current (within the last four years) documents referring to prices, costs, reimbursement rates, wages, compensation, budgets, projections or other financial information, not including documents that have been made public.
2. Current (within the last four years) documents discussing or referring to planning.
3. Current (within the last four years) documents referring to or discussing payor, employer, provider or network negotiations, negotiation strengths or weaknesses, bargaining power, or negotiation strategies or methodologies.

The parties were unable to agree on a fourth category, and the Court decided to resolve that on a case-by-case base as the issues arose. That fourth category is as follows:

4. Current (within the last four years) contracts with physicians or facilities and the terms of recent (within the last four years) physician practice or facility acquisitions or affiliations.

The Court approved this agreement of counsel and entered its Pretrial Order well ahead of trial to give the media a chance to file any objections prior to trial. No objections were filed, and the trial proceeded.

To accommodate the public and media, the Court made available daily redacted transcripts. The redactions concerned matters that “involved some combination of sensitive negotiation strategy, confidential financial projections, or personal compensation information.” See Memorandum Decision (Dkt. No. 357).

The trial proceeded for over a week without objection to this procedure, until the Associated Press (AP) filed its motion to intervene, seeking to unseal all documents and testimony. The Court held a hearing on the AP’s motion on October 8, 2013, and granted the motion in part. See Memorandum Decision (Dkt. No. 357). In that decision, the Court (1) allowed the media outlets to intervene to argue the access issue; (2) directed the parties to file justifications for the material already sealed and, going forward, the material they request to be sealed; (3) authorized the AP’s counsel to review all material, sealed or not, under the same obligation of confidentiality as the attorneys for the parties; and (4) indicated that the Court would review the submissions by the parties and make a final determination of whether compelling reasons exist for the sealings. Id.

As the trial proceeded, the Court became convinced that the original reasons for sealing certain material “appeared less compelling.” See Memorandum Decision (Dkt. No. 468) at p. 2. Ultimately, the Court decided to issue its Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law without any redactions. Id.

There remains sealed, however, portions of (1) testimony, (2) depositions, and (3) exhibits. The parties submitted extensive materials arguing that the sealed status of the documents and testimony should be maintained. A portion of that material is cited here to demonstrate the extensive review necessary to resolve this issue: See Declarations of Schaefer (Dkt. Nos. 348 & Exhibits 1 & 2, 360 & Exhibit 1, 370 & Exhibit 1); Amended Supplemental Declaration of Randolph (Dkt. No. 449); Affidavit of Howard Young (Dkt. Memorandum Decision & Order – page 3

No. 339-1); Primary Health Brief (Dkt. No. 297); Declaration of Dr. Peterman (Dkt. No. 297-1) & Supplemental Declaration (Dkt. No. 330); Micron Brief (Dkt. No. 304) & Supplemental Declaration of Otte (Dkt. No. 328); Declarations of Barton (Dkt. No. 336 & 438); Declarations of Schafer (Dkt. Nos. 360 & 375); Declarations and Affidavits of Westermeier (Dkt. Nos. 345-2, 367, 368, 379, 453 & 446); Declaration of Phillip (Dkt. No. 386); Declaration of Powers (Dkt. Nos. 344 & 399); Affidavits of Julian (Dkt. Nos. 327, 359 & 378); Declarations of Diddle (Dkt. Nos. 334 & 350); and Affidavit of Christian (Dkt. No. 346).

While the Court was in the process of reviewing this material, the AP appealed to the Ninth Circuit and sought a Writ of Mandamus to open the entire case file. On April 8, 2014, the Ninth Circuit issued an Order noting that this Court was in the process of conducting its review. See Order (Dkt. No. 494). The Circuit denied the petition for the Writ of Mandamus without prejudice to the filing of a new petition if this Court had not completed its analysis by July 8, 2014. Id.

The Court has now completed its review of all the sealed material along with the requests of the parties and third parties to maintain the sealed status of those materials. For each item that they request to be sealed, the Court will determine whether it meets the “compelling reason” standard that is discussed further below.

LEGAL STANDARD

There is a “strong presumption” in favor of access, and a party seeking to seal judicial materials must identify “compelling reasons” that outweigh the “public interest in understanding the public process.” Kamakana v. City & County of Honolulu, 447 F.3d 1172, 1178-1180 (9th Cir. 2006). There may be compelling reasons to seal “business information that might harm a litigant’s competitive standing.” Nixon v. Warner Communications, Inc., 435 U.S. 589, 598 (1978). But the “mere fact that the production of records may lead to a litigant’s embarrassment, incrimination, or exposure to further litigation will, not, without more, compel the court to seal its records.” Kamakana, 447 F.3d at 1178. With regard to non-litigants, while there is no presumption that their privacy requires sealing, the balancing test may reach that result, especially if the non-litigants are not involved in the litigation and their sensitive and confidential information has been involuntarily provided pursuant to subpoena. See generally In re Roman Catholic Archbishop of Portland, 661 F.3d 417, 424 (9th Cir. 2011) (reversing decision to publically release personnel file of 85-year-old priest who had retired, but affirming decision to release allegations of child abuse against another priest, still active, due to strong public interest in disclosure).

The Court has used these legal standards to review all of the material that the parties and third parties seek to keep sealed. In large part, the Court cannot find compelling reasons to justify maintaining the sealed status for most of the courtroom testimony now under seal.

The analysis changes somewhat, however, for the exhibits. Many of the exhibits (1) contain sensitive personal information regarding named physicians concerning their compensation, productivity, or contractual terms of employment; (2) contain strategic and financial information concerning the parties and third parties that would be damaging if revealed; (3) have only the faintest connection to the issues in the case and hence are not helpful to the public in understanding the case, and (4) were not important to the Court's decision. For this category of exhibits, there are compelling reasons to keep them sealed.

This is especially true with regard to the testimony and exhibits connected to the third parties that did not voluntarily participate and were subject to subpoena. These third parties include Micron, Imagine Health Network and Primary Health. Much of the information they were required to submit contains their highly confidential business strategies. This information was not important in the Court's decision and is not necessary to the public's understanding of the case. Given this, the balance tips decidedly toward keeping this material sealed.

This analysis does not apply to third party Blue Cross. They were a very active participant in the trial and much of the information they submitted was crucial to the Court's decision and to the public's understanding of the case. Thus, a higher percentage of their material is being disclosed.

In the charts below, the Court will analyze and rule upon each exhibit and page of testimony that the following parties request to remain sealed: (1) St Al's; (2) Treasure Valley Hospital; (3) St. Luke's; (4) Saltzer; (5) Blue Cross; (6) Micron; (7) Imagine Health; and (8) Primary Health.

Saltzer

Saltzer's Requests for Redaction or Sealing	Court Analysis	Decision
Tr. 3216 to 3221	Discussion about decrease in compensation estimated for Saltzer physicians if the deal was unwound. This does contain sensitive information about compensation. But it is general in nature and not tied to any individual physician, and is also crucial for understanding St. Luke's argument that unwinding the deal would prejudice Saltzer physicians. It is important to the Court's decision and to the public's understanding of the case. Accordingly, the Court cannot find compelling reasons to keep it sealed.	Denied

Also contains a critical analysis of opposing testimony that Saltzer could cut costs and avoid compensation reductions. Because this discussion reveals actual financial data such as revenue and overhead, it contains sensitive business information that could be damaging if revealed. On the other hand, this discussion is crucial to the public's understanding of St. Luke's argument that unwinding the deal would prejudice Saltzer physicians. On the whole, the Court cannot find compelling reasons to keep this sealed.	Denied

Treasure Valley Hospital's Requests for Redaction or Sealing of Trial Testimony	Subject Matter	Decision
Tr. 998:1-11	Discussion of the mix of patients seen at Treasure Valley Hospital (TVH) – that is, which insurer is covering these patients. Blue Cross

The Court has already resolved, in its decision unsealing the Findings and Conclusions, some of Blue Cross's requests to seal or redact certain testimony and exhibits. For example, the Court rejected Blue Cross's request to redact any reference to its experience in Twin Falls with the Physician Center. That experience, the Court reasoned, "is nearly five years in the past, an eternity in this fast moving field, and there is no discussion of personal compensation, future strategy, or sensitive details in this brief account. There may be a minor competitive disadvantage from revealing the incident, but it pales before the public's right to understand the Court's analysis."

The Court applied the same analysis to the attempts to redact statements that (1) St Luke's or Saltzer are "must have" providers in the Blue Cross network, (2) that Blue Cross would not have a "sustainable product" without them, and (3) that the Acquisition would take away a health insurer's best outside option and make negotiations more difficult. These are very general statements and were repeated in various forms by so many witnesses that they are essentially matters of common knowledge.

Blue Cross objected to revealing specific figures and percentages regarding hospital-based billing. The practice of hospital-based billing has been widely publicized, however. See Rosenthal, "As Hospital Prices Soar, a Stitch Tops $500," New York Times (Dec. 2, 2013); Brill, "Bitter Pill," Time Magazine (Feb. 20, 2013). While revealing those numbers may offer some insight to competitors, the prejudice is not great when compared to the powerful insight those figures offer to the public trying to understand how the Court arrived at its decision.

Blue Cross also wanted to redact any reference to its reimbursement to St Luke's growing from an average amount in 2007 to a top-five amount in 2012. Again, the bargaining leverage that St. Luke's has with payors is well-known within the industry, and confirming that with figures causes no great competitive harm. Given the testimony at trial, St. Luke's position at the top of the reimbursement list will not surprise anyone.

Blue Cross also wanted to redact references that it pays more than Medicare for some provider services. Blue Cross complains that these figures will disclose to its competitors the reimbursement rates it has negotiated with hospitals and physicians. But the references do not reveal any reimbursement rates paid to hospitals or doctors, and only point out that Blue Cross pays more than Medicare without breaking down the recipients of those reimbursements. Such a general discussion can do little competitive harm, but the paragraph is vital to demonstrate the current status of health care prices in Idaho.

These are some of the general considerations that the Court has used to resolve specific requests by Blue Cross to keep testimony and documents sealed. More specific explanations are contained in the chart below that covers each item that Blue Cross wanted to remain sealed.

Blue Cross Request for Redaction	Subject Matter	Decision
Couch Trial Testimony 182:8-19	Specific dollar amounts that Blue Cross reimburses St Luke's Hospital, and general range for other hospitals. various hospitals throughout the state. The relative reimbursement rates are crucial to an understanding of the Court's analysis, and were ordered unsealed in a separate decision by the Court unsealing the Findings and Conclusions. The analysis changes with regard to the specific dollar figure identified as Blue Cross's annual reimbursement to St. Luke's. That sum is not necessary to understanding this case, and would prejudice Blue Cross in its negotiations. Thus, the Court	Redact only the dollar amount on line 19 of page 182.

	will strike only that dollar amount. There is another specific dollar amount named, but it is not attributed to any specific hospital and will remain unredacted to provide context.
Couch Trial Testimony 199:18 to 201:3	Discussion of specific negotiations with a provider in Burley, including evaluation of that provider's medical practices. This was not mentioned by the Court in its Findings and Conclusions and plays no role in understanding the case. It could affect the reputation of a non-party provider that could cause substantial harm. There is no countervailing reason to reveal the provider's name.	Redact
Couch Trial Testimony 230 to 251	The Court rejects Blue Cross's request to redact this testimony. A large section of this discussion involves the Twin Falls/Physician Center experience that the Court has already ordered must be unsealed. It also contains a general discussion of the way Blue Cross negotiates contracts that is so general as to be harmless. It includes a discussion of "Best-Alternative-To-Negotiated-Agreement" or BATNA, that the Court has already ordered must be unsealed.	Denied
Couch Trial Testimony 253:14	The Court rejects Blue Cross's request to redact this testimony. It discusses how St. Luke's acquisition of Saltzer would cause the prices of ancillary services to rise. This issue of "hospital billing" was ordered by the Court to be unsealed in its prior decision.	Denied
Couch Trial Testimony 261-268	The Court rejects Blue Cross's request to redact specific dollar figures showing the increase in costs for various medical procedures due to "hospital billing." The specific dollar sums are crucial to understanding this concept which is in turn crucial to understanding this case and the Court's analysis. Whatever prejudice Blue Cross might suffer is slight when compared to the right of the public to have this information.	Denied

Blue Cross does not regard St. Luke's as an efficient provider of care. Data from 2007 to 2012 is discussed as part of Blue Cross negotiations with St. Luke's over reimbursement rates. The reimbursement rates of various Idaho hospitals are compared generally, but no other hospitals are identified by name. The Court has already unsealed the gist of this testimony – that Blue Cross reimbursement rates to St. Luke's went from about average for Idaho hospitals in 2007 to one of the highest by 2012. The testimony in these 15 pages is (1) crucial to the public's understanding of this case (2) old enough in some cases that it is hard to imagine any harm resulting from revealing it, and (3) general enough that specific hospitals other than St. Luke's are not identified. Couch Trial Testimony 330:17 to 331:1	Blue Cross is concerned that St. Luke's is offering preferential reimbursement rates to its own insurer, Select Health, and requiring high reimbursement rates from Blue Cross. This is a matter between St. Luke's and Blue Cross over which they have negotiated, and so there is nothing confidential as between those two entities. Moreover, the discussion does not affect any third parties, so is not confidential in that sense. St. Luke's market power is important to an understanding of this case. Blue Cross was concerned that St. Luke's would seek higher reimbursement rates for the same procedures done at the same facility simply because it had been acquired by the hospital. This dispute illustrates the nature of hospital-based billing, an issue the Court has ordered must be unsealed because it is a key to this case and a key to the public's understanding of this litigation. Exhibit 1296	This is a memo summarizing a 2010 meeting between officials from St. Luke's and Blue Cross concerning the dispute over St. Luke's purchase of a surgical center (and increasing its billing rates) without notifying Blue Cross. The Court has discussed above why it refuses to redact this discussion – it illustrates hospital billing, a major issue in this case. Although it may reveal some negotiating strategy, the memo is four years old and there is no compelling reason to redact it.	Denied
Exhibit 1297	This is the Settlement Agreement between St. Luke's and Blue Cross that settled the legal dispute over St. Luke's failure to give notice before it purchased a clinic and starting billing at higher hospital rates. It concerns St. Luke's negotiating power and the issue of hospital billing and there appears no compelling reason to keep it a secret.	Denied
Exhibit 1298	This is a "Summary of Reimbursement Trends" showing how the billings from two orthopedic clinics increased once they were purchased by St. Luke's. This demonstrates the hospital billing issue that was a key to the Court's decision. No individual physicians is mentioned – the information is limited to the types of surgeries done and the billing rates.	Denied

Imagine Health

Imagine Health is not a party to this action but their Director Jackie Butterbaugh was subpoenaed by the parties as a third-party witness, and she testified in a deposition. Imagine Health asks the Court to seal certain portions of her testimony and certain exhibits introduced through her.

Much of Butterbaugh's testimony concerns Imagine's business strategies, both in general and with regard to specific negotiations. For example, she discusses (1) Imagine's process for selecting physicians to add to their network, including an assessment of their skills; (2) Imagine's strategies for growth in Boise, and their targeting of certain regions in Idaho for future growth; (3) the details of their negotiations with Micron and Primary Health; and (4) pricing terms of Imagine's deals with providers.

The Chief Financial Officer and General Counsel at Imagine Health, Howard Young, has filed his affidavit asserting that the portions of Butterbaugh's testimony that Imagine seeks to seal includes "sensitive confidential information of Imagine Health, including trade secrets." See Young Affidavit (Dkt. No. 339-1). The Court's review confirms this allegation. Much of Butterbaugh's testimony could be used by competitors to gain a significant advantage over Imagine Health. Importantly, Imagine Health was forced by subpoena to divulge this information, and is not a party in this lawsuit. Moreover, the Court's Findings and Conclusions do not mention Imagine Health or Butterbaugh, and there is nothing in her testimony or the associated exhibits that is necessary for the public to understand the Court's analysis.

Based on all these circumstances, the Court finds compelling reasons for sealing much of Butterbaugh's testimony and the associated exhibits. The following tables are the result of the Court's line-by-line review of Butterbaugh's testimony and will identify with specificity those pages and lines of her deposition and trial testimony that is to be redacted. The Court also includes a table of the exhibits that must remain sealed.

Primary Health

Primary Health is not a party to this litigation but their President Dr. David Peterman was subpoenaed to testify at trial and to provide documents, some of which were entered into evidence. He discussed, among other things, (1) proprietary information on how Primary Health selects the physical location for their medical clinics; (2) Primary Health's financial investment in an electronic records system; (3) physicians who he identifies by name; and (4) Primary Health's productivity, recruiting strategies, and staffing model.

Dr. Peterman filed his Declaration identifying each confidential item by page and line number and explaining why the testimony needed to remain confidential. Dr. Peterman states that the testimony and exhibits he designates as confidential would "if disclosed, expose Primary Health to harm and strategic disadvantage in the marketplace." See Supplemental Declaration (Dkt. No. 330). After comparing Dr. Peterman's assertions with each page and line number that he seeks to seal, the Court agrees in large part (although not entirely) with his analysis.

There are compelling reasons for sealing much of what Primary Health seeks to seal. For example, in one portion of Dr. Peterman's testimony, he explains how he pays physicians in his network. See Trial Transcript at pg. 1249. In other testimony, he explains how Primary Health chooses the physical locations of its medical clinics. Id. at 1167-1171. This proprietary information is akin to a secret formula of ingredients for, say, a soft drink – it gives a competitive advantage to the holder of the formula, who has expended time and money to develop the formula. If the secret formula is revealed, the competitive advantage is lost. Thus, there are compelling reasons to keep much of this material sealed. Moreover, this proprietary information played no role in the Court's ultimate decision, and thus is not necessary for the public to understand the Court's analysis. Finally, it is important that Primary Health is not a party to this litigation and did not provide the information voluntarily but only subject to a subpoena.

On the other hand, Primary Health asks to seal Dr. Peterman's discussion of the difficulty in recruiting physicians to come to Canyon County. This information was testified to by a number of witnesses and is basically a matter of public knowledge. Moreover, it was crucial to the Court's analysis. Hence, the Court quoted from Dr. Peterman's testimony in its Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, and held that the information would not be sealed. See Findings and Conclusions (Dkt. No. 464).

Finally, there are a number of instances in Dr. Peterman's testimony where he names a certain physician and discusses his practice. If revealed, this could be professionally damaging and would serve no purpose – the identification of the physicians by name adds nothing to the public's understanding of this case or to the Court's analysis.

With these guidelines in mind, the Court has prepared the table below that reviews each page and line number of the testimony and exhibits that Primary Health seeks to seal. The table gives a summary of the material at issue and describes the Court's ruling on whether that material should be sealed.

Micron

Micron was not a party to this litigation. Through discovery subpoenas, the parties compelled Micron to provide confidential information and testimony.

Specifically, Micron's Vice President of Human Resources Patrick Otte testified at the trial. He testified about Micron's efforts and strategy to provide a network of health care providers for its employees. While Micron's program was discussed at length during the trial, the Court's Findings and Conclusions contain no mention of it, and the program played no role in the Court's decision. Hence, the public can have a full understanding of this case without revealing how Micron established a network of health care providers.

Moreover, the information is highly confidential. Patrick Otte explains that it reveals Micron's strategy in negotiations and pricing a system of health care for its employees. See Otte Declaration (Dkt. No. 304-1) at pp. 2-3. Micron must continue to negotiate with health care providers and payers, and this information would compromise their negotiating strength. In addition, this is proprietary information that could be exploited by competitors.

The Court's review of Otte's trial testimony – and the associated exhibits – is summarized in the table below. The Court's rulings as to each matter that Micron seeks to seal or redact are set forth in that table.

CONCLUSION

The Court has now resolved the requests for sealing. The Court will direct the parties to publically disclose the material previously sealed in accord with the decision set forth above, and to make that disclosure within 30 days from the date of this decision. The parties shall contact the Clerk's Office to determine if the best method for public disclosure is a filing on CM/ECF or a filing on the Court's website (with a notation to that effect on CM/ECF). The Court assumes that even though it has limited jurisdiction because of the appeal to the Ninth Circuit, the Court retains jurisdiction to set this time limit and manage the logistics of the public disclosure. The parties are free to file a motion if the Court has inadvertently overstepped the bounds of its limited jurisdiction.

ORDER

In accord with the Memorandum Decision set forth above,

NOW THEREFORE IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, that the parties shall publically disclose the transcripts and exhibits as set forth above within thirty (30) days from the date of this decision, and shall contact the Clerk's Office as set forth above.
