

build a team. And that's why your coach is Coach of the Year and deservedly so.

So on behalf of a well-oiled unit of people who came together to serve something greater than themselves, congratulations.

[At this point, player Jill McWilliams made brief remarks and, with teammates Kim Behrends and Angie Oxley, presented the President with a jersey and a signed volleyball.]

The President. So here's what we're going to do. Why don't you all come—and if you'd complete the trip, why don't you come into the Oval Office so I can show you one of the great shrines of America.

Thank you all for coming.

NOTE: The President spoke at 8:55 a.m. in the Rose Garden at the White House. In his remarks, he referred to John Cook, women's volleyball coach, and Bill Byrne, director of athletics, University of Nebraska.

Remarks to National Race for the Cure Participants

June 1, 2001

The President. Thank you, First Lady. [Laughter] Thank you all for coming. It’s kind of a raucous crowd here in the White House. [Laughter] But for a reason. There’s a lot of joy here. I’m so honored to be here with Nancy and the Secretary of Health and Human Services, Tommy Thompson. I want to thank Congressman Ken Bentsen, who is here, I believe. And I certainly want to thank Jo Dee Messina for lending your talents.

It’s my honor to welcome you to the White House. Your great movement represents hope for cancer victims and hope for cancer’s cures. And I can’t tell you how honored we are to have you here.

Many of you play key roles in the fight against breast cancer, beginning with our dear friend, Ambassador-designee Nancy Brinker, the founder of the Komen Foundation, which during the last 20 years has become the largest private funder of breast cancer research and community outreach in the Nation. You’ve raised over $400 million to support breast cancer research, education, screening, and treatment.

I want to thank those of you who are participating in tomorrow’s Race for the Cure. I wish I was running. [Laughter]

Audience member. Come on out! [Laughter]

The President. Well, talk to the Secret Service. [Laughter] Plus I’m a little older than the last time I ran. [Laughter]

Less than 20 years ago, the first Komen Race for the Cure was held in Dallas, Texas. Eight hundred people participated in that race, and we raised $130,000. This year there will be 115 races across the country and around the world, involving 1.3 million participants. Last year alone, the National Race for the Cure in Washington, DC, raised more than $3 million.

The great thing about this race is you’re not running for time, running for ribbons; you’re running to save lives. And America is grateful.

Laura and I want to recognize those of you in the audience who have had breast cancer.
