

I want to thank Congressman BILBRAY for taking the lead on this Beach legislation over the years and for all his hard work in making sure we pass this legislation. Without his hard work and determination over the years we would not have passed this legislation today. I also would like to recognize Senator LAUTENBERG for his leadership on this issue in the Senate.

Every year, over 180 million people visit coastal waters for recreational purposes. Over half of the population of the United States lives near a coastal area and traditionally a great majority of Americans visit coastal areas every year to swim, fish, hunt, dive, bike, view wildlife and learn. For many states, this tourism provides significant economic benefits. In fact, coastal recreation and the tourism industry are the second largest employers in the nation, and supporting 28.3 million jobs. In New Hampshire, for example, the seacoast region is one of the most popular tourism spots in the State. Rye Beach and Hampton Beach, to name a couple, provide beautiful vacation spots for those of us in New Hampshire and many of our friends in neighboring states.

Unfortunately, pathogens found in sewage spills, storm water runoff, and combined sewer overflows are impairing water quality and threatening the health of the public who visit our nation's beaches. While some States have strong programs for monitoring and informing the public of the presence of pathogens that are harmful to human health, others do not.

In response to the need for consistency among the States in monitoring and public notification of pathogens in coastal recreation waters, Representative BILBRAY and Senator LAUTENBERG introduced their Beach bills.

The bills require all states with coastal recreation waters to adopt water quality criteria that protect public health and welfare, consistent with EPA criteria guidance for pathogens and pathogen indicators. The legislation requires the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, in cooperation with State and local governments, to publish performance criteria that provide guidance for state monitoring and assessment, and public notification programs that protect human health.

The performance criteria will be used by the States as guidance to improve upon existing monitoring and notification programs or, in some States to establish monitoring and notification programs. In the case of New Hampshire, which as an extensive monitoring and notification program, these performance criteria will provide further guidance to improve upon our program.

The bills provides $30 million over 5 years in grants to States and local communities for the implementation and development of these monitoring and notification programs. In certain situations, such as the early stage of a program, EPA will be able to award as a grant a large percentage, up to 100 percent, of the costs of developing a program to some states. This provides those few States without monitoring and notification programs a great incentive through grant funding to develop and implement this comprehensive program. Improving water quality at our nation's beaches, as well as implementing monitoring and public notification programs, will benefit all Americans who have a right to expect that they can safely swim in the water.

The Committee filed the Report on S. 522 (Rept. No. 106-366) on August 25, 2000. The Committee Report and the text of S. 522, as amended in Committee, reflected a number of changes negotiated by the Committee and the two principle sponsors of the House and Senate bills, Congressman BRIAN BILBRAY of California and Senator FRANK LAUTENBERG. Over the past few months, I have worked with my colleagues on the Committee, particularly Senators LAUTENBERG and BAUCUS, and with Congressman BILBRAY to continue to improve the language of this legislation. Together, we have crafted a comprehensive Manager's Amendment that I believe provides States with needed flexibility and enhances environmental protection. As the manager of the bill, and a cosponsor of the Senate bill, I am pleased that the Senate passed this Manager's Amendment as a substitute to the text of both H.R. 999 and S. 522. Both bills, as passed by the Senate, reflect the agreements and principles set forth in Senate Report No. 106-366.

I thank Senator BAUCUS and my other Committee colleagues, as well as Senators LOTT and DASCHLE, for helping us continue the tradition of bipartisan action on environmental matters.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, [SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

]This Act may be cited as the "Next Generation Internet 2000".

[SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

]The Congress makes the following findings:

](1) The United States investment in science and technology has yielded a scientific and engineering enterprise without peer. The Federal investment in research is critical to the maintenance of our international leadership.

](2) The Internet is at a pivotal point in its history. While promising new applications in medicine, environmental science, and other disciplines are becoming a reality, they are still constrained by the Internet's capacity and capabilities. The current Internet cannot support an emerging set of activities, many of which are essential to mission-critical applications in government, national laboratories, academia and business.

](3) Government-sponsored network research and development is critical to the success of the Next Generation Internet. Previous Federal investment in computer networking technology and related fields has resulted in the creation of new industries and new jobs in the United States.

](4) Since its establishment in 1998, the Next Generation Internet Program has successfully funded peer-reviewed research to address the critical need for increased network performance and management.

[SEC. 3. PURPOSES.

]The purposes of this Act are—

](1) to authorize, through the Next Generation Internet Program and Large Scale Networking Program, research programs related to—](A) high-end computing and computation;

](B) human-centered systems;
