

families all over Latin America, sub-Saharan Africa, and Asia. But, in any event, it is apparent that powerful groups in this country want to destroy the nuclear family. And probably no policy did more to aid in the destruction of the American family than Lyndon Johnson's war on the family. I think he called it the War on Poverty, but it was really the war on the family is what it amounted to.

I hope after almost 60 years or approaching 60 years after the war on the family and the huge expansion of the welfare state that this Congress would begin to address the discrimination against the traditional family.

Madam Speaker, if you look at the welfare programs—whatever program that you look at, be it health insurance, be it SNAP, but be it WIC, be it the earned income tax credit—which was a very anti-marriage program which was actually initiated by a Republican—all low-income housing, daycare, TANF, Pell grants, and other provisions—program after program after program—are designed to take tax dollars from the traditional family and give it more to other families. It is no problem to help everybody, but I think when you clearly set up programs designed not to go to the nuclear family, you are discriminating against them.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
